

LINDBERGH EXPLAINS TO BRITISH PILOT HOW HE GUIDES HIS PLANE

CHARTED COURSE ACROSS OCEAN BY COMPASS ALONE

Sir Alan Cobham Says This Is Not Navigating, Which Is Based on Celestial Observation.

AIRMAN TOO BUSY TO TAKE SIGHTS

"Sheer Bravery," He Declares, Is What Flight Stands For—Was Not Worried by Imagination.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, May 23.—Sir Alan Cobham, famous British aviator, cabled the following statement from Paris to the Daily Mail last night:

"Lindbergh not only will go down to posterity as the name of the first man to fly without a stop between New York and Paris, but rather as the first and possibly the last man to cross the North Atlantic alone. It was a very brave effort.

"This afternoon I flew over from London to Paris accompanied by Lady Cobham, and after inspecting Lindbergh's Ryan monoplane, went direct to the American Embassy. At a word from the Ambassador, Lindbergh came forward enthusiastically to greet me. He showed no signs of wear and when he told me he felt quite fresh I believed him, although 34 hours in one position within an airplane or where else would completely exhaust any average man.

"Magnificent Constitution. He must have a magnificent constitution, as he assured me that not once during his long flight did he feel sleepy.

"I think the worst period of my whole flight," he said, "was when I flew into heavy stormy weather after leaving Newfoundland on the evening of the first day. The trouble was that these storms were at all altitudes and although I tried almost every height I could not get out of continual rainstorms and cloud banks. The difficulty of flying through storms was increased owing to night, and all through the dark hours, which luckily for me were not very many, I had to rely entirely upon the stability of my machine and instruments."

"I wanted to clear up one point. It was as to how Lindbergh had navigated the machine single-handed, so I inquired if he came on dead reckoning. He told me he had done the entire journey on dead reckoning with a compass, which was exactly the way I made my long distance flights.

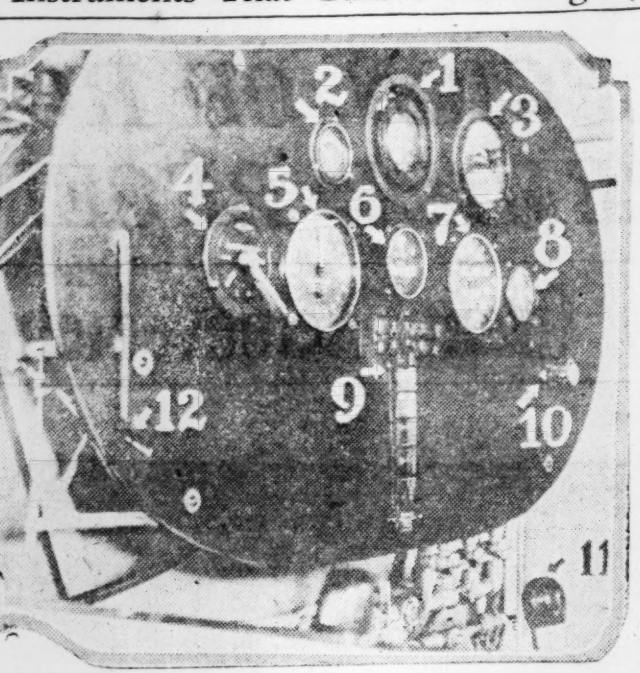

"Of course, this is not navigating. The professional navigator constantly takes sights and corrects his position throughout the journey either by sextant or drift indicator. The use of these instruments requires both hands, and as an airplane pilot is occupied with both hands and feet, it has proved in the past almost impossible for an aviator to navigate alone in the real sense of the word.

Flight Stands For Sheer Bravery. "There is not a professional air pilot nor an amateur who does not stand in absolute admiration of Lindbergh's sheer bravery. Sheer bravery is exactly what the flight stands for, unless Lindbergh is devoid of imagination, or better still unless his imagination does not worry him.

"Practically, from the time he started flying many miles out at sea until he came in sight of Newfoundland, and then through darkness out over the open Atlantic through the stormiest night, his only chance was the reliability of his engine. Many pilots can imagine how for hour after hour Lindbergh had to sit in the cockpit with absolutely nothing to sight except the watery waste. His only guide was his compass on which he had to depend to bring him through to his objective, and it was only after he had been in the cockpit for 24 hours that he sighted land.

"I asked Lindbergh how he knew it was Ireland he had sighted. 'At first I had to guess,' he replied, 'but roughly from contours on my map I knew I should see little mountains. Cornwall in England, I knew would be hilly and undulating, and the shape of the coast line would be easy to recognize. When I saw the mountains of Kerry I guessed it was Ireland, so picking up my Irish map, I finally checked myself with the coast line and was able to pick up landmarks and thus learn my exact whereabouts. A diversified nature. It seems to

Instruments That Guided Lindbergh

"I wanted to clear up one point," said Sir Alan Cobham, the famous distance flyer, in commenting upon Capt. Lindbergh's flight. "It was how Lindbergh navigated the machine single-handed."

Here is the apparatus that made it possible. Dial No. 1 in the photograph is Lindbergh's earth induction compass face. This apparatus enables the pilot to set his course and the hand on the dial shows when he leaves it, by deviating either right or left, from the central position on the dial. When it deviates the pilot simply corrects by steering in the opposite direction and setting his plane back on its course. The other instruments on Lindbergh's board are: 2, oil pressure gauge; 3, altimeter; 4, ignition switch; 5, tachometer; 6, bank and turn indicator; 7, airspeed meter; 8, clock; 9, inclinometer; 10, gasoline pressure pump; 11, control stick; 12, throttle.

France Confers Cross of Legion of Honor on Flyer

sels on Saturday and then to London on Monday, it was announced this afternoon.

Lindbergh said this evening that he was in no particular hurry to go home and that he was considering going to Sweden, his father's birthplace, but that he was still undecided. He has no intention of making any more long-distance flights for many months at least, he said, and added that the rumors that he hoped to hop across the Pacific ocean were "most inopportune."

Great Throngs Everywhere.

"Crowds gathered at the American Embassy, Lindbergh's temporary home, and at every other point where he might possibly appear, and vendors along the boulevards shouted a new song written over night in his honor.

Ambassadors and other notables called to see him and messages of congratulation continued to pour in from all parts of the globe. So many telegrams and cable messages have been received that they have not all been classified, and hundreds of letters remain to be opened.

A line of motion picture representatives and theatrical promoters has been waiting outside the Embassy in an endeavor to get to him, all talking in large sums.

Has Accepted No Offers.

Capt. Lindbergh has not accepted any of the hundreds of offers—already running above $1,000,000—that have come to him and he has no intention of doing so until after his return to the United States.

"We didn't make the flight with that idea in mind," he said tonight, "and we didn't come over here with any million dollar ambitions." Figures checked at the aero club show that Lindbergh not only is the first man to make an uninterrupted flight between New York and Paris but that he holds the long distance non-stop record, the journey having covered 3647 miles.

The American Embassy today was fairly besieged by crowds of curious persons, many of whom brought autograph books in the hope of getting the flyer's signature. To enable Lindbergh to fulfill the constantly increasing number of engagements the Ambassador is accepting for him, it was necessary to weed out those who called.

A big crowd gathered early under the windows to shout greetings to him as he hurried in and out with the Ambassador.

One of the notables calling at the embassy was the Norwegian minister in Paris, Baron Wedel Jarlsberg, who told Ambassador Herriek: "As the representative of Norway, the country of Nansen, Amundsen and Grant—who in 1911, alone and as young as your countryman, flew across the North Sea from Scotland to Norway for the first time—I have come to tender you Norway's heartfelt admiration for Lindbergh and his historic feat."

One Joy After Another.

The news of the Legion of Honor award spread quickly. Midnight-making shops along the Faubourg-Saint-Honore came rushing out, and when Lindbergh left, the street was lined on both sides by girls, who tossed flowers at him and threw him kisses.

"It's just one joy after another," Lindbergh said, referring to the Legion of Honor, "and this is one of the great."

ties will pay the flyer a signal honor on Wednesday, when he will be the guest at a reception in the rooms of M. Fernand Boulenger, President of the Chamber.

Lindbergh's first thought this morning was of the plane that carried him across the Atlantic. Immediately after breakfast at the Embassy, he stepped into an automobile and went to Le Bourget to look over the plane and see what the crowd had felt.

Even at an early hour this morning there was a goodly company in front of the Ambassador's residence and the flyer was met with a wild burst of cheering as he entered the car.

Copies of the official record of his flight were presented to Lindbergh this morning at Le Bourget by Commandant Renouville of the flying field. The commandant personally escorted him to a hangar where his plane has been housed over Sunday.

Plane In Good Shape.

"It's in good shape—not nearly so badly banged about as I thought it would be," the aviator said after looking it over.

He stayed at the field only a few minutes, hurrying back to the Embassy to dress for the official reception by President Doumergue, which took place at 6 p. m.

One of his first visitors was Adolph Zukor, American motion picture producer, who chatted with Lindbergh a few minutes, and declined to reveal what they talked about. Another caller was the representative of one of the firms that furnished accessories for the plane.

Many fashionable persons who usually frequent the morning walks in the Bois de Boulogne, took promenades today in the Avenue Diane, where the American Embassy is located, and cavorted with the usual morning ride in around the Trocadero, made detours in the hope of catching sight of the American aviator.

His Exploits Fill Newspapers. The story of Lindbergh's life, ambitions, flight experiences and particularly the details of his crowning achievement, fills the newspapers to the exclusion of all else, for the simple reason that nobody wants to read about anything else.

The American Embassy is crowded with floral offerings and is being bombarded with invitations to be the ambition of every aspiring aviator to have him at her table. The organizers of sports, scientific societies to have him lecture, or vaudeville promoters to have him give performances. Lindbergh says he would like to please everybody, but it is impossible to accede to even one-tenth of the requests. He will be guided in acceptance by Ambassador Herriek, who is acting as his social adviser.

Wears Footman's Suit.

Having come to France with a limited wardrobe—only his flying suit, with a toothbrush and razor tucked in his pocket—Lindbergh found himself faced with the clothes question when he arose yesterday; hence his hurried visit to the tailor. He had to wear a footman's suit, which was able to supply a blue suit, the fit of which left much to be desired.

As Lindbergh was enjoying a 10-

PARADE FEATURE OF CITY'S PLAN TO HONOR LINDBERGH

Flyer and His Plane to Be Taken on Long Route When He Returns to St. Louis.

A parade over a long route, and railroad excursions to increase the welcoming throng, are planned as major features of St. Louis' welcome to Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, on his return to St. Louis in June or July.

A mammoth barbecue at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field, and a more formal dinner at a hotel or a club, are other details of the reception plans, which were discussed by Mayor Miller today when Harry H. Knight and Harold H. Hixey, two of Lindbergh's most active backers.

It was agreed that there must be a parade, to enable everyone in St. Louis to see both the flyer and his plane, "Spirit of St. Louis." The plane will be carried in the parade, on a truck. If it will fit in with the time of his arrival, the parade will be held in the city, as being the best time for marching in summer.

Knight has cabled to Lindbergh asking when he will return. He hopes the flyer will be back in three weeks or so.

"Lindbergh, I'd want to stay over there a little while," was the Mayor's comment. "But we are in a hurry to see him here." The conferees said they would ask the railroads to make special trains for the flyer, and a number of outside visitors here for the celebration.

One suggestion made today was that Lindbergh's mother, who lives in Detroit, should be invited to be the guest of honor at the reception in front of the Ambassador's residence and the flyer was met with a wild burst of cheering as he entered the car.

The municipal and public celebration of his flight, which will be carried out in the spirit of other civic welcomes of recent years, those to the city's homecoming soldiers and to the pennant-winning and later world's champion Cardinals.

hour sleep yesterday in a room in the Embassy, messages of congratulation, and offers of all sorts were being up, while as soon as the flyer came to himself he was met by an exciting night. American flags appeared everywhere. By order of Premier Poincare the Stars and Stripes were flown over the Louvre Palace and the French Foreign Office. It was the first time the American emblem was raised at the Foreign Office since President Wilson reached Paris, as the honor is usually reserved only for visiting sovereigns.

After the young aviator had talked to his mother in Detroit by telephone he appeared on the balcony of the Embassy to satisfy the crowds that had gathered there for a glimpse of him.

Distinguished Callers. Before the flyer stirred from what seemed to him the best bed he had ever slept in, a steady stream of callers came to the Embassy. Among them were Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States; Marshal Lyautey, a Foreign Office official, bringing greetings from Foreign Minister Briand; and Jean Borotra, the French tennis star. M. Raymond Orteig, donor of the $25,000 prize for a nonstop flight linking Paris and New York, came too.

Orteig came to Paris from the Pyrenees in order to greet Lindbergh. Le Journal today prints a poem dedicated to Lindbergh by the celebrated Maurice Rostand, writer of the flying field at Le Bourget, a half hour after the aviator landed.

It is based on Alan Seeger's "I have a rendezvous with death," and concludes, after referring to the American war dead, with the lines:

What brought you here, predestined one, Through risks where others fall? It was a rendezvous they gave you. At their fresh graves.

Workers at Le Bourget are clearing up the debris left by the crowd—estimated at as high as 50,000—that swarmed across the field when Lindbergh completed his flight.

Hundreds of hats, scores of shoes, and parts of clothing torn in the rush, littered the ground, and on the flying field at Le Bourget a six-foot iron fence flanked by the crowd that rushed over it when the plane descended.

Ten Hurt in Crash. Ten persons were hurt in the crash and were taken to a hospital, but the plane was little harmed. Hundreds of gendarmes quickly drove souvenir hunters away. A few minutes after Lindbergh stepped out of his cabin, the machine was rolled into a hangar.

The plane must be placed on public exhibition, says L'Auto, France's sporting daily. It is expected that the plane will be placed in the Tuilleries Gardens as the best place, expressing the hope that the idea will be adopted without delay by the authorities.

KINGS AND OTHER EUROPEAN CHIEFS PRAISE AIRMAN

Congratulations Sent by Albert of Belgium, Gustave of Sweden and Alfonso of Spain.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 23.—"The greatest achievement of modern times," is the way the Belgian press hails Capt. Lindbergh's exploit—the triumph of human science and physical endurance.

King Albert, who was kept informed hourly of the progress of the flight, expressed his admiration for Lindbergh's performance and his most fervent wishes.

By the Associated Press. STOCKHOLM, May 23.—King Gustave, through his legation at Paris, wired Lindbergh as follows: "The whole Swedish nation joins me most heartily in congratulating you on the feat you accomplished with such success."

Everybody in Sweden is proud that Lindbergh is of Swedish descent. The Royal Aero Club of Sweden has awarded the flyer its highest gold decoration and invited him to come here to receive it.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, May 23.—King Alfonso of Spain was quick to congratulate Lindbergh on his flight. In a telegram to the young aviator, the King said:

"I am most interested in your admirable exploit of crossing the Atlantic alone. I want to congratulate you affectionately."

Musollini Praises Lindbergh for "Superhuman Will." By the Associated Press. ROME, May 23.—Premier Musollini sent the following message to Henry P. Fletcher, the American Ambassador to Italy:

"Please accept the shouts of enthusiastic admiration which at this moment ring from the heart of all the people of Italy exulting over the superb feat of Lindbergh."

"A superhuman will took by assault space and subjugated 150 years once more bowed to the mind and the wizard, so that Lindbergh's feat will remain forever in the memory of men to the glory of Lindbergh and his people."

Leaders of France Unanimous in Praise of Feat. Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Publishing Co., New York World and Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, May 23.—Felicitations to Capt. Lindbergh from prominent Frenchmen continued today. Foreign Minister Briand declared: "France welcomes Capt. Lindbergh with enthusiasm. His heroism is a glory to the United States. In achieving his feat, the French nation is proud and happy to salute the representative of the American nation whose magnificent and unprecedented exploit is a symbol of the close friendship uniting the two countries."

Strelet, secretary of the Graphology Society, to whom Lindbergh's signature was submitted, has discovered "sound reasons" for the general admiration of the aviator as a man and as a scientist.

"What strikes me first," he says, "is the angular nature of the writing, indicating firmness of conception and firmness of execution. That may appear rather obvious in the light of events. Other characteristics are revealed in the signature. The writing is bold, which is proof of mental balance, and good health. The up-strokes are very high, which is a sign of strongly marked idealism, even mysticism."

"On the other hand, its unevenness denotes the writer is highly emotional, while logical power and continuity of ideas is shown by the way the letters are closely joined, and the sloping character reveals great sensitiveness, surprising in so energetic a man. Finally, I see in the signature indications of wide general culture."

All France Proud of Him. If yesterday had not been a holiday because of its being Sunday, it would have been made one by the people of Paris; indeed by the people of all France. Everybody needed a day off to talk about the flyer. His trip was on every tongue in Paris. One talked anything except Lindbergh.

The heart of the French people has never before been given to a stranger so wholly and spontaneously. They are as proud of him as though he were one of them. The quarters can talk of nothing but him. His photograph has gone from the front page of the newspapers to window panes and to the walls of homes. Solomons signs such as Le Temps have leading articles on Lindbergh. He is called everything from "Superman" to a "fine little chap."

The main thing about the flight, which offers downright bewilderment to the Parisian, is the fact that Lindbergh is called "the flying fool." The impression has come from everything he has done and said that he is a singularly reserved and self-contained young man who knows what he is doing every minute and is not extravagant or eccentric.

Par a expected to find him a dare-devil type but since he arrived it has learned that he is gentle as any young man could be.

$1,000,000 POT OF GOLD FOUND AT RAINBOW'S END

Definite Offers of $735,000 in Movie and Commercial Contracts Only Drop in Lindbergh's Bucket of Success.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 23.—A million-dollar pot of gold at the end of his 3,800 mile rainbow today awaited Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh.

While world-wide acclaim continued to mark the achievement of the youthful New York to Paris aviator, there came offers which would enable him to get back many times over his $2000 investment in his flight.

Within 24 hours after ending his epochal flight, the 25-year-old flyer received definite offers of $735,000 in movie and commercial contracts.

A fortune of more than $1,000,000 would be within his grasp should he be able and willing to fulfill an elaborate array of motion picture, vaudeville, advertising testimonial, writing and other contracts.

He, Alone, Must Decide. But what the young Captain will do it not known. Of the $200,000 which the flight cost, Lindbergh contributed his own savings of $2000. St. Louis business men made up the balance.

He is free to do what he chooses about the flattering proposals, Harry H. Knight and other sponsors of the flight have said in St. Louis. "To the victor belong the spoils," his backers said in announcing that Lindbergh may keep the $25,000 Orteig prize he has won and all other money which may accrue.

Lieutenant G. L. Stump, representing Lindbergh's sponsors in New York, said all offers would be held pending the flyer's return to America. Lieutenant Stump and R. F. Mahoney, president of the Ryan Air Lines Co., builders of the monoplane in which Lindbergh won his victory, over the Atlantic, plan to remain in New York to await his return.

Close friends of the aviator feel his natural modesty will cause him to waive the theatrical and movie contracts.

While the young aviator personally was unprepared to disclose his full plans he has been emphatic in declaring he intended to continue flying.

What will be done with "The Spirit of St. Louis" is a question. Aviation enthusiasts have suggested having it placed in the Smithsonian Institute, or some similar place. "If I know 'Slim' as well as I think I do," Lieutenant Stump said, "I am sure he will want to fly the plane in exhibitions in this country, and I think the people will want to see both the plane and the pilot."

Estimates of His Rewards. Estimates on Lindbergh's possible earnings for the next year, based on contracts offered, are: Movie contracts, $500,000; vaudeville, $400,000; radio, $50,000; his story in book form, $50,000; magazine and newspaper articles, $50,000; advertising concessions, $75,000.

Early proposals to the youthful hero included an offer of half a million dollars for his appearance on the stage and the screen for John J. McGuirk, president of the Stanley Co. of America and also president of the First National Film Corporation; $100,000 for a week's theater contract from General B. Franklin, president and general manager of West Coast theaters.

The Manufacturers' Association of Minneapolis is willing to pay him $10,000 to attend the dedication ceremonies at the opening of the Minneapolis Municipal Auditorium; Louis O. Maclean has offered $5000 if he will land his plane near the Music Box Theater in Hollywood some time this summer; Louis B. Mayer of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios at Culver City, Calif., has offered a movie contract, salary unnamed.

Ellis A. Gimbel, of New York and Philadelphia, is willing to pay $100,000 for one year if Lindbergh will become a pilot or official of a Philadelphia-to-Paris air freight line. S. L. Rochefort "Roxey" of the Roxey Theater in New York cabled an offer of $25,000 for a week's appearance.

WIFE OF DAVIS RETURNS TO REPLY TO HICKS INQUIRY

Faces Elks Club Employees and They Say She Is Not the Woman Seen With Lawyer Before Murder.

GETS PROMISE OF POLICE COURTESY

Voluntary Witness Accused as Accessory Disappeared
After Funeral and Had Evaded Search.

Mrs. Patricia Davis, sought by police for questioning in the Hicks murder mystery, voluntarily returned to St. Louis today, after being assured by Chief of Detectives Kaiser and associates that she would receive courteous treatment and in an interview with Post-Dispatch reporters said she was willing to answer any questions concerning the case.

She denied she was the woman at the Elks Club with Hicks on the night of the murder, April 30, 1925, or that she had seen Hicks at night to set at rest any uncertainty as to the identification.

"I never have seen the Elks Club in my life," Mrs. Davis said. "I had not seen Clifford Hicks for two weeks before his death."

Woman Calls On Siderer. With her husband, William Davis, who is under $20,000 as an alleged accessory to the crime, she visited Attorney Siderer's office shortly before noon, ready to answer any questions.

Substantially, the statement of the Elks Club, which is a waiting room, John Fisher, a member of the club, who saw the woman with Hicks that night, looked at Mrs. Davis and said she was not the woman, the Daveses and Siderer then had a talk, the details of which were not disclosed.

Mrs. Davis disappeared May 5 after attending Hicks' funeral with her husband. She said today she did so on the advice of her husband. Since that time she has been in communication with Sigmund Rasm, her husband's attorney, who obtained assurance from the authorities that they had no intention of molesting her.

She is an attractive brunette, tall, with brown bobbed hair and grayish blue eyes. Her description does not answer that of the woman seen with Hicks at the Elks Club. She is much younger, blond, and more slender.

Accounts for Her Moves. Discussing the events of Saturday, April 30, Mrs. Davis gave an account of her movements from each afternoon until the next morning.

"That afternoon my daughter, Patricia, and I were at the home of my husband's parents, 4347 Wideman avenue," she said. "We were making bird cages. My husband came in about 7 o'clock and we had dinner there. We went to our own home on Carson road about 2:30 o'clock and went to bed, intending to read for a while. Then my husband received a telephone call from Glenn Hicks and went over to his house.

"Later that night he stopped by the house on his way with Glenn over to Clifford Hicks' home. He told me Glenn was worried about Clifford and that he would stay with Glenn for the night. I asked him to fix the furnace, which he did, and he left. Early in the morning about 2 o'clock, my husband stopped by again. He and Glenn and Mrs. Glenn Hicks were on their way back from Clifford's home to Glenn's home. He told me Glenn had asked him to go with him to Clifford's office the first time in the morning.

"I told him not to go. He was tired and I wanted him to get some sleep. He said he was going, however, and left."

Mrs. Davis said she had lived in St. Louis all her life and had known Clifford Hicks for two years.

"I met him through my husband, and he attended to some legal business for us," she said. "But I never went anywhere with him alone. I knew him only as a friend of my husband's and knew nothing of his affairs. I thought he was a fine fellow. I don't know a thing about the case."

At a inventory of the murdered lawyer's estate, which does not list his $25,000 life insurance, was filed today at Clayton, showing a total of $4,425. The largest item was a Packard sedan automobile appraised at $1,400, household furnishings at home in University City are listed at $400, with other —International Photo.

Daughter of Mexican President, Bride Despite a Tardy Modiste

THE love that, according to popular tradition, laughs at locksmiths and such grinnings broadly at a Paris modiste who didn't have Sonora Ernestina Calles' wedding gown ready on time. The photograph shows the bride, 20-year-old daughter of the President of Mexico, after her wedding to Thomas Arnold Robinson of New York, last week at Nogales, Sonora. Instead of her belated wedding gown, the bride wore an American creation of white satin, mantled with an exquisite "mantilla."

BANK CLERK, SHORT $20,000, GETS 4 YEARS HOTEL MAN SHOT DEAD IN FIGHT IN HERRIN

Oliver Dodge, 22, Sentenced in East St. Louis Federal Court.

Oliver J. Dodge, 22-year-old bookkeeper at the Stockyard National Bank, who embezzled approximately $20,000, today was sentenced by Federal Judge Wham at East St. Louis to four years on each of 15 counts, charging embezzlement and false entries.

The sentences are to run concurrently, so the actual time will be four years. Dodge will be eligible for parole after 18 months. He will be taken to Leavenworth Penitentiary shortly.

His attorney, Ray Hendrichs, asked the Court to extend mercy. He blamed the horse and dog races for Dodge's predicament. He mentioned the defendant's "good family connection." The defendant's grandfather, Patrick Kerrigan, served as Chief of Police of East St. Louis.

District Attorney Baker replied Dodge had betrayed his employers and had not shown penitence when arrested. In addition to spending money on the races, Baker continued, Dodge was known as a free and liberal spender in the night life of St. Louis and owned three automobiles. Baker said the embezzlements amounted to between $20,000 and $25,000, and extended back two years. Bank officials have placed the amount at $25,000 and the time as nine months.

"The safety of banks rests not in steel vaults, but in the honesty of employees," Judge Wham remarked in passing sentence. Dodge pleaded guilty last Thursday.

Furnishings and personal sundries making up the remainder. Hicks had a small equity in his $20,000 home, but this does not appear.

Mystery Enters Fourth Week. Investigators beginning their fourth week on the Hicks murder case, with no solution in sight, today resumed their questioning of persons who knew Hicks.

One of those slated for a session with Chief of Detectives Kaiser and Assistant Circuit Attorney Andrew C. Maroney behind closed doors at Headquarters today is Henry Hostelman, fur thief and ex-convict. He was arrested for questioning early in the case and released under $5,000 bond.

Learning that police wished to question him again, he telephoned Kaiser and said: "I'll be in. You needn't send for me. I'll answer any questions you've got."

Hostelman had been seen riding in an automobile with Hicks a few days before the murder and was an investor in Hicks' St. Louis Finance Corporation.

Maroney wishes to find out more about the business relations between Hostelman and Hicks. The ex-convict said he had invested $10,000 with Hicks and drew, regularly, $37.14 each month in interest. This is a remarkable return on a $10,000 investment, Maroney thinks, and may indicate an explanation of Hicks' business failure.

Another informant to be questioned again is Sam Fox, lawyer associate of Hicks, who loaned Hicks money and was familiar with some of his business deals.

WANTS U. R. RATE OF RETURN FIXED BY SERVICE BOARD

Mayor Wishes Amount Determined in Advance and Included in Franchise Ordinance.

A decision was virtually reached this morning by Mayor Miller and Stanley Clarke, attorney for the United Railways reorganizers, to ask the State Public Service Commission to recommend the rate of return to the company to be placed in the proposed 30-year franchise for the United Railways, which is to be submitted either to the Board of Aldermen or to the voters under the initiative in September.

After his conference with Clarke, the Mayor said that the rate of return would be passed on to the Commission if the franchise should be voted. He and Clarke had agreed if a rate of return approved in advance by the Commission, there might be much difficulty avoided later, he said.

The reorganizers have insisted that the ordinance specify a 7 per cent return upon a valuation of $50,000,000, and the Mayor has been opposing a higher return than 6 per cent.

The plan for preliminary submission of the question of return to the commission was laid before City Council for March by the Mayor. Moore said there was no legal method for presentation of such a question to the commission, but that the request could be made and the commission could take it up of its own motion.

It is the present intention to have the ordinance ready for submission to the Board of Aldermen when it reconvenes in September. After the summer vacation, although it was said, the question of whether it would be submitted finally under the initiative had not been decided. At any event, the ordinance first must go to the Board of Aldermen, which must fix the date for a special election if it is to be submitted under the initiative. The board, if it desires, can pass the ordinance without amendment, an action which would obviate the necessity of an election.

Mayor Miller 10 days ago, in stating to the Post-Dispatch his attitude on the franchise, said that on the whole he considered the proposal a good one, though he was not absolutely committed to it. He repeated a former statement that he thought the company should be satisfied with a 6 per cent return.

MOTORMAN KILLED WHILE HE PLAYS WITH PISTOL

Andrew Axley, U. R. Employee, Victim of Weapon He Thought Was Not Loaded.

Andrew Axley, 35, a street car motorman, of 1819 North Taylor avenue, mortally wounded himself accidentally yesterday in the restaurant at 1113 North Taylor avenue while playing with a revolver he thought was unloaded.

After completing his run, on the Taylor line, Axley called at the restaurant, which is near his home, and operated by Mr. and Mrs. William Ray. Ray told police Axley had been left there by a man he did not know. He showed it to Axley and asked him to unload it.

Axley removed several cartridges from the chamber and closed the weapon. He then slipped a finger into the trigger guard and twisted it around rapidly. There was a shot and Axley fell with a bullet in the abdomen.

He was taken to the City Hospital where he died on the operating table.

MILLIONAIRE NEGRO WOMAN
GETS UNCONTESTED DIVORCE

Mrs. Annie M. Turnbo Malone, of Pore College (Divorce Decree on Cross-Bill).

A divorce was granted today to Mrs. Annie M. Turnbo Malone, Negro millionaire owner of the cosmetics business known as Pore College, 4209 St. Ferdinand avenue, from Aaron Malone who recently accepted about $200,000 for his claim for a half-interest in the business.

The decree was granted on Mrs. Malone's cross-bill to her husband's petition. He did not contest.

MAJOR TO RESIGN AIR CORPS
POST TO ADVANCE LINDBERGH

Major C. Ray Wassall today announced that he would resign as commanding officer of the 110th Observation Squadron, the local National Guard air unit, if Capt. "Slim" Lindbergh would take the place. Lindbergh is now a flight commander on leave from the outfit. Major Wassall declared he would be glad to revert to a captaincy so that Lindbergh's exploit might be recognized by a promotion.

Lindbergh also holds a commission as Captain in the Air Corps Reserve and Maj. George Reisberg, air officer of the Seventh Corps Area, has already begun negotiations to have him promoted to Major.

$1000 RING TAKEN IN JEWELRY STORE HOLDUP

Wife of Proprietor Alone in Place Is Threatened by 2 Men With Revolvers.

Mrs. Maud Monchilovich, 26 years old, wife of the proprietor of a jewelry and music store at 1416 South Broadway, reported to police that she was held up in the store shortly before 10 o'clock this morning by two men and robbed of a diamond ring valued at $1,000.

The men entered the store while Mrs. Monchilovich was alone. After several minutes spent in conversation one man drew a revolver and demanded the ring set with a 2-carat diamond and eight smaller stones, which Mrs. Monchilovich wore on her finger. Mrs. Monchilovich hesitated a moment and the robber with the revolver threatened to strike her with the weapon. She then handed over the ring and escaped in an automobile. A license number of which has been furnished police.

Police are seeking Burnett, who is 21 years old and lived at 4114 Beethoven avenue.

DECISION GIVING CITY

CONTROL OF JAIL UP TO

Sheriff Has No Jurisdiction Over
Institution, Supreme Court Rules on Appeal.

Sheriff Schuler's claim for control of the City Jail was decided in favor of the State Supreme Court today by the State Supreme Court.

The jail for 10 years has been in charge of a City Jailor appointed by the Mayor, and will continue so it was Schuler's contention that inasmuch as he was responsible for Federal and state prisoners in the jail, he should have charge of the institution.

To bring about a test suit, Schuler seized the jail for a few hours last August and a suit was filed in the Circuit Court. Judge Roskopf ruled against Schuler, who appealed to the Supreme Court.

ART NEWMAN HELD IN CALIFORNIA; TO FIGHT EXTRADITION

Fugitive Birger Gangster, Indicted for Murder of Mayor Adams of West
City, Asserts Innocence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
BENTON, Ill., May 23.—Sheriff James S. Pritchard of Franklin County will depart today for Long Beach, Cal., with extradition papers for the return to Benton of Art Newman, Birger gangster, wanted for participation in the murder of Joe Adams, 300-pound Mayor of West City, near Benton, who was assassinated Dec. 12 last, in the Birger-Shelton gang war in Southern Illinois.

Newman was arrested shortly after daybreak yesterday, on information from State's Attorney Roy C. Martin, at an oil refinery near Long Beach, where he recently obtained employment. He had been using an alias, "John Rogers," but admitted his identity. He said he was innocent of the charge and that he would fight removal to Illinois.

Newman had been sought in Long Beach for several weeks. He had fled to that city to join his brother, Ira S. Newman, former Long Beach police officer, in a private detective bureau operated by the brother. Art Newman soon gave up this work and went to the refinery.

Fourth Man Taken in Case
Newman, who is 33 years old, is the fourth Birger gangster to be taken into custody under indictments for the murder of Mayor Adams. Birger and Ray Hyland, two of the other three, are in jail at Benton and Marion, respectively, being held without bond. The fourth, Harry A. Thompson, of West Frankfort, is in the Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Menard, under a life sentence on a recent plea of guilty and confession that he and his brother Elmo, now dead, killed Mayor Adams at the command of Birger, Newman and Connie Ritter. The latter, who still is at large, also is under indictment for the crime.

Chief John Stack of the Illinois Highway Police also wants Newman for questioning concerning the abduction Jan. 17 from their home at Marion of Lory L. Price, State highway patrolman, and his wife. Price's body, riddled with bullets, was found in Washington County, but no trace has been discovered of Mrs. Price. Stack and Williamson County authorities have information that Price and his wife were taken away by Birger gangsters because they feared Price knew too much of the killing of Mayor Adams and other crimes of the Birger gang.

Newman's Gang Affiliations.
Newman was a coal miner in Southern Illinois, but gave that up for gambling and later, whiskey running, from the South. As a bootlegger Newman came into competition with Birger and the Shelton brothers. When the Sheltons fell out with Birger in whiskey deals, Newman joined the Birger forces in gunning for the Sheltons. He, Birger and Harvey Dunphy, another Birger gangster, were the chief witnesses against the Sheltons in the Collinsville mail robbery case, of which the Sheltons were convicted recently at Quincy and sentenced to 25 years in the Federal penitentiary. The Sheltons were granted a new trial a few days ago on an affidavit from Dunphy that he perjured himself at the command of Birger and Newman.

Federal Judge FitzHenry at Springfield today fixed the bonds of the three Shelton brothers at $25,000 each, designating $20,000 bond in each case on the robbery charge and $5,000 each on the conspiracy charge. Counsel for the Sheltons told the court that men from Williamson County were on the way to Springfield to sign the bonds.

Newman and Others Indicted for Pochontas Bank Robbery.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
GREENVILLE, Ill., May 23.—Indictments charging robbery of the Bond County State Bank at Pochontas were announced today by State's Attorney Alvin against Art Newman, Connie Ritter, Freddie Wooten, "Slim" Mack and Perry Bliley, members of Charlie Birger's notorious Williamson County gang.

The indictments were returned May 10, but were ordered suppressed until today, with announcement of the arrest of Newman at Long Beach, Cal., for complicity in the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, Franklin County.

The bank at Pochontas was robbed Nov. 30 by five armed men, who hold up the cashier and six customers and escaped with $10,000, of which $2500 was in Liberty Bonds.

The robbery was committed at 2 p. m., one of the busiest hours of the day for this bank, and the robbers upon entering demanded the payroll of the Pochontas coal mines, which was not in the bank on that date.

Newman and Wooten are in custody. Bond under the indictments has been fixed at $70,000 for each defendant.

$90,000 worth of KARPEN FURNITURE

Bought By Us At a Price That

Enables Us to Offer it at # 33 1/3 off

THIS fortunate purchase involves over 800 separate and distinct suites and odd pieces, no two alike. This is all new furniture of superlative quality used by Karpen as exhibition pieces at the recent market. They decided to remodel their show rooms and we took over the entire contents at a substantial price concession that enables us to offer it at one-third off regular prices. Many of the frames are hand carved in Europe, but the furniture is assembled and upholstered in this country, thus providing American stability with European beauty. This is by far the most elaborate selection of furniture of this character that we have ever offered. Remember, these pieces are all "one-of-a-kind" and we cannot be responsible for any suite or piece shown or described that may be sold before you call.

Fine Frocks Wise Women Will Invest in Two and Three of These

Frocks that increase the interest of a woman in her wardrobe. The Frocks are so attractive at this inexpensive price that one may have several for the usual cost of a single Frock of this type. The fabrics are soft, serviceable qualities of flat crepes (many of which will tub serviceably), crepe de chine, stripe tub silks, plain and printed Georgettes as wistful in designs and colors as Summer itself.

The colors feature white, the new pastel and soft blues, greens, yellows, pinks, rose, beige, gray and orchid shades as well as navy and black. All are clear, clean, cooling shades, imparting the effect of coolness and Summer charm to each Frock.

The new square Chanel neck—the neckline finished by a long streamer bow—the trim straight-line model—the two-piece model—the fluttery printed Georgette—each has a very generous representation in several styles in this group.

MRS. LINDBERGH CALM AS POLICE RESTRAIN CURIOUS

Mrs. Lindbergh Goes to School to Teach Her Chemistry Class, as Congratulations Pour in.

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., May 23.—Happy—and tremendously proud—Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, stout-hearted mother of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, spent yesterday quietly in her little home in North Ashland avenue, thanking friends who brought words of congratulation, but studiously avoiding the spotlight of publicity.

Three policemen stood guard at the Lindbergh home with instructions to admit no strangers. A delegation of friends, presumably fellow faculty members at Cass Technical High, where the "Lone Eagle's" mother is a chemistry instructor, came with greetings. The telephone rang incessantly as through it all Mrs. Lindbergh maintained her calm, unruffled manner. A few strangers sought admittance, but were politely moved on.

Mrs. Lindbergh was most concerned that admiring throngs in the French capitol would let her son have some much-needed rest. "I hope they will let him sleep," she said.

"It's his affair," she said, explaining her reticence and aversion to publicity. What he does next also is "his affair." He always has been permitted to make his own decisions and abide by them, the proud mother declared.

Always Calm and Collected.
Mrs. Lindbergh reiterated today her disagreement with those who considered her boy foolhardy in undertaking the lone flight from New York to Paris. "He is always calm and collected and there was nothing impulsive in his decision to do it," she said.

Today, Mrs. Lindbergh took up where she left off last Friday night in the classroom at Cass Tech., teaching other folks, boys and girls the mysteries of chemistry. She took with her a heart filled with thanksgiving that her own boy is safe and sound at the end of his ambitious rainbow.

Hundreds of telegrams and cablegrams of congratulations have poured into the Lindbergh home from all parts of the world.

Mrs. Lindbergh was particularly proud of a telegram from Theodore Roosevelt Jr., and spoke of the friendship that existed between the sender's father and her late husband, Congressman Lindbergh of Minnesota. Young Roosevelt's message read:

"Your son has written a chapter in American history that will always be an inspiration to the country. You are both the kind of Americans of whom we feel proud."

Others who wired congratulations include Postmaster General New, Ambassador Herrick, Edward P. Warner, in behalf of the Navy Department, the prime minister of Poland, Evangeline Booth and W. A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics. One man wired from Sweden to learn if Lindbergh was a relative of his.

Swedish and Irish Descent.
Mrs. Lindbergh said she was at loss to reply to the inquiry. "Charles is of Swedish and Irish descent," she said. "His paternal grandfather, a former member of the Swedish parliament, came to America in 1860 and settled in Minnesota. His father, a former representative in Congress from Minnesota, lived most of his life in Little Falls, Minn. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan."

Her own people, Mrs. Lindbergh said, were of Irish descent, and added:

"No son of Ireland ever looked upon the Emerald Isle with such gratitude as he must have Saturday morning."

Mrs. Lindbergh said she knew "Red" and "Nellie" are probably just as happy today as she is, adding that those are the nicknames of Phillip Love and Thomas Nelson, pilots on the Chicago-St. Louis Air route, pal of the flyer.

"They are boys, just like Charles. They would not think of telegraphing or cabling to him, but he knows and I know that their prayers followed him through every one of those 3600 miles of flight."

Mrs. Lindbergh refused to be photographed.

"There is no reason for photographing me," she said. "All credit is due to my boy, and I do not want to take any of it from him. This was a long venture for him. All the glory is his."

RHINELANDER PLANS DIVORCE
Will Start Action in Reno, New York Paper Says.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The New York Herald Tribune says Leonard Kip Rhinelander will establish a residence in Reno, Nev., and will there sue Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander, his quadroon wife, for divorce. According to the plan, Rhinelander will make a settlement on his wife to include her dower interests in his real estate. He is paying her $250 a month alimony.

Rhinelander lost his suit for annulment which he brought on grounds that his wife had deceived him as to her race.

ST. LOUIS FRIENDS WONDER IF "SLIM" WILL GO ON STAGE

Discuss Likelihood of His "Cashing In on" Million-Dollar Offers or Sticking to Aviation Only.

Which will it be?
Is "Slim" Lindbergh to follow the logical course and cash in, perhaps to the extent of about a million dollars, on the fame that is now his because of his New York-to-Paris flight? Or is the lean youngster from St. Louis to turn his back on the wealth the vaudeville stage and movies offer him, and stick to flying exclusively?
His St. Louis backers, the men who "knew" Lindbergh could do it and put the money up for the trans-Atlantic trip, are discussing the proposition informally among themselves today, while "Slim" in Paris, doubtless is giving thought to the best of advantages that contain offers for movie and vaudeville contracts, advertising and press agencies and whatnot.
Today the first offer for a personal appearance on the stage is to be presented to Harry H. Knight, the young broker who got behind Lindbergh at the start and helped him complete his preparations for the flight. It is a tender of $25,000 for a week's appearance on the stage of Roxy's Theater in New York.

Offers by the Hundred.
There have been hundreds of such offers announced so many in fact, that New York press agents estimate Lindbergh may be able to take in a million in gross receipts if he cares to do it. Knight, in St. Louis, has Lindbergh's power of attorney, and as Lindbergh remarked many times before his hop-off, "whatever he says, goes." Knight was undecided today whether it would be advisable to accept any offer for Lindbergh at the present, and explained that mature thought would be required before a decision is made.

"I can say this, however," he said. "We want Capt. Lindbergh back in St. Louis as fast as he can get here after landing in New York. If any theater thinks it can take him off the boat and keep him for two weeks in New York, it is wrong. Of course, if they want him to appear once or twice, and 'Slim' wants to, it might be arranged. But the first consideration is to get him back again in his own town."

The bashful airman has declared many times that he would not consider vaudeville or movie contracts. "I couldn't do it," he has said. "It would get my goat; I'm sure it would."

Those who know "Slim" well are inclined to think he will never get over his refreshing bashfulness, that he will never get used to his position as a hero, even under the adulation of the demonstrative French.

His Circumstances Modest.
It is possible, however, that Lindbergh may nerve himself to stage appearance, even though it be a harder trial than the start on his transatlantic flight. He is in moderate circumstances, relying for his support upon the money he makes as a flyer. His father, former Congressman Charles A. Lindbergh, of Little Falls, Minn., has been dead for three years, and "Slim's" mother is teaching chemistry in a Detroit high school.

Undoubtedly Lindbergh could make the best use of whatever money the flight brought him. A man of modest tastes, whose greatest happiness is in living in flying togs, he unquestionably could amass sufficient money to allow him to pursue the flying game for the rest of his life without regard for financial stringencies.

Whether he accepts the vaudeville and movie offers, there is certain to be considerable revenue for him in giving testimonials to various products, particularly of an aeronautical and automotive nature, and he is destined to receive many valuable gifts, just as he has already received an automobile from one St. Louis dealer.

Certain His Hair'll Fit.
As for "Slim" himself, his flying mates at Lambert-St. Louis Field are united in the declaration that his experience as a world hero will not change him a particle. They knew "Slim" will have a hard time conceiving himself as a great figure and that back in his head he will visualize himself as the same boyish chap that passed his spare time at the flying field in thinking out and executing practical jokes.

They see evidence of this Lindbergh in his spontaneous, boyish gesture in visiting the mother of the French flyer, Nungesser. They see his retiring nature once again in his action in taking letters of introduction with him to France.

"I figured I didn't know anyone over here," he explained to Ambassador Herrick in Paris. Apparently he never had considered that his feat would make his name a household word in all the civilized world, and that he needed no introduction.
He had got the letters from Col. Theodore Roosevelt before he made ready for his jump across the Atlantic.
"That request was typical of the boy," Col. Roosevelt remarked yesterday. "He was obsessed only with the desire to fly across the Atlantic. He was so anxious to carry out his judgment that the ocean could be crossed that he did not remotely conceive the glory that would be his with the crossing. He had given not a single thought to glory and he had no idea he was to be a hero."

If he had, some of his mates here think, Lindbergh might conceivably have considered abandoning his flight for the time and making the start in secret. They recall that Lindbergh became embarrassed to the point of extreme awkwardness upon introduction to

MORE LOUISIANA TOWNS FLOODED AFTER HEAVY RAIN

Five and Eight Inch Down pours Imperil More Than 100 Persons Trapped in Lowlands.

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, May 23.—Torrential rains, imperiling many in the lower west basin of the Atchafalaya River today.

Sudden rises of the Vermilion River and Bayou Teche, brought by five to eight inch rains, and augmenting the flood waters pouring into the streams, carried them the lowlands between Lafayette and Breauville.

Between 100 and 200 persons in the bottom lands along the Vermilion are believed to have been trapped by the sudden rise of the stream. Boats were dispatched to their rescue.

Breaux Bridge was cut off from communication with the rest of the world except by boat. Southern Pacific tracks in the town were two and a half feet under water. The town of Vermilion also was under rapidly rising water.

St. Martinville was disappearing beneath the flood. All women and children were reported safely out of St. Martinville. Many of them had fled to a refuge camp at Greenville, but the driving rains flooded the site chosen for their quarters there and they were forced to move to the concentration camp at Lafayette. The population of the camp there had been swollen to 15,500.

The fight along the east levee of the upper Atchafalaya still is successful, the citizens are hopeful of saving rich parishes of the sugar belt from the flood.
The crest of the flood has passed on the lower Mississippi, Dr. L. M. Cline, meteorologist at the New Orleans Weather Bureau believes and the river will continue to fall below the mouth of Old River at New Orleans.

Torrential Rains in Arkansas Cause Sudden Rises in Rivers.
By the Associated Press.
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 23.—Rains throughout Central Arkansas yesterday raised a new flood menace today with few strong levees remaining to hold back the waters.

A deluge in Little Rock covered some streets into small rivers, nearly three inches of rain falling in less than three hours.

An eight inch rainfall was reported at Pottsville which poured water up into a bank building, according to rumors received here. Streams in the central part of the state were rising. A rise of nearly three feet, from 10.4 to 13.4 feet in the Arkansas River at Little Rock was reported by the Weather Bureau. The White River is said to be rising slowly.

When Lindbergh passed through St. Louis on his record-breaking flight from San Diego to New York, he elected to spend the night at the field in the face of an invitation from Knight to be guest at Knight's country home. True to form, Lindbergh too breakfasted the next morning at Louie's and smilingly rejected Louie's statement that "you can spend any money here," remarking that "if I didn't pay you that 4 cents, it would worry me all the way to Paris."

Louie's place has been the scene of "Slim's" prodigious exploits. Eating. Hard work in the out doors gave Lindbergh an appetite that occasionally required such meals as half a dozen eggs for breakfast, for example, but he more he ate, the leaner he became. An accretion of fat on his string muscular frame was as unknown as fite on a swinging propeller.

Now that "Slim" is a real celebrity, the boys at the field take greater pleasure than even in recounting his exploits, not only the air but on the ground. The recall the time, for example, the "Slim" drank 21 glasses of water. Just to show, it could be done. Many are the stories they tell of "Slim" eating a meal in one restaurant, starting down the street and turning in again at the next eating establishment.

If "Slim" had any real bad habits, however, his friends don't know of them. He had a penchant for "stunning" close to the ground," but his skill with the controls took aerial acrobatics almost beyond the realm of chance.

He eats a lot, but not too much to support his magnificent constitution.

He does not drink, and if the memory of his friends serve never curses. He does not "smoke" and "doesn't care for girls," he says, with all his seeming perfection of conduct, he was never one to make up a disadantlous note at the language of other flyers or the easy habits of some of his associates.

LINDBERGH TELLS MME. NUNGESSER STILL TO HOPE

Trans-Atlantic Flyer Calls on Mother of Aviator
Who Has Been Missing
Two Weeks.

VISIT TOUCHES HEARTS OF PEOPLE

"As a French Woman, I Must Be Brave," Is Her
Reply to Comforting
Words of American.

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

PARIS, May 23.—Capt. Lindbergh paid homage yesterday to the Unknown Soldier and then enshrined himself more firmly in the hearts of the French people by going at once to the home of the mother of Capt. Charles Nungesser.

Twisting his hat in his hands, his words interpreted by a member of the American Embassy as they came haltingly, the youthful flyer urged the mother of his fellow aviator, who essayed the crossing of the Atlantic and has been missing two weeks, still to have confidence that her son will be found.

"I couldn't let my first visit be to anyone but the mother of the brave comrade I lost in America and whose fearlessness I have always admired," Lindbergh told Mme. Nungesser. "Like all Americans, I regret that he and Major Goll did not succeed in their great effort but hope and believe they will be found."

Must Be Brave, She Says.
The mother of the French war hero, her face lined by sorrow and anxiety, sobbed as she asked the American to forgive her for not being at Le Bourget airdrome to greet him when he landed.

"I would have been there to greet you," she explained, "if my strength had not been sapped by 10 days of sleepless worry. I am too profoundly touched by your presence to express my feelings. As a mother I still hope my son will be found. As a French woman I must be brave."

Then, with a motherly gesture, she took the young flyer in her arms, patted his head and kissed him. Overcome by emotion, Lindbergh hugged her and patted her on the shoulder.

Crowds Blocked Streets.
Large tears rolled down his cheeks, and as he looked away to Ambassador Herrick, who accompanied him on the visit, he saw tears in Herrick's eyes also. The news of Lindbergh's visit to Madame Nungesser had preceded him to her home. Two thousand of her neighbors blocked the streets near the house.

Anticipating the visit, she had invited the members of her family to be present.

LINDBERGH IS CHAMPION RIFLE SHOT, SAYS SCHOOLMATE

Can Ride Motorcycle as Well as Fly, Former Wisconsin U.
Student Recalls.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 23.—Flying isn't the only accomplishment of Capt. Lindbergh. He can ride a motorcycle as well as he can fly a plane and is a champion rifle shot.

When Lindbergh was at the University of Wisconsin, W. D. O'Connor, a former schoolmate of the flyer recalled here, "He always tore about on a motorcycle. He tuned the motor up, built it up for higher speed and got it—but I don't recall once he was arrested for using it."

"When we started from school at Madison in 1921 for summer military school at Camp Knox, Tenn., O'Connor observed, "he went on his motorcycle. He threw a blanket on behind and started, just like he grabbed four sandwiches, water and chocolate and started for Paris."

Lindbergh was a member of the school's rifle team, O'Connor said, and one year he won the Western Intercollegiate Championship for Automatic Rifle Fire.

MRS. W. K. VANDERBILT BUYS
FRANK A. MUNSEY HOME

Manhasset, L. I., Estate Reported to Have Been on Market at $475,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, May 23.—The residence of Frank A. Munsey at Manhasset, L. I., fashioned after the Petit Trianon at Versailles, and 60 acres of his estate there have been purchased by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, now in Paris, from Joseph P. Day, representing the Munsey estate.

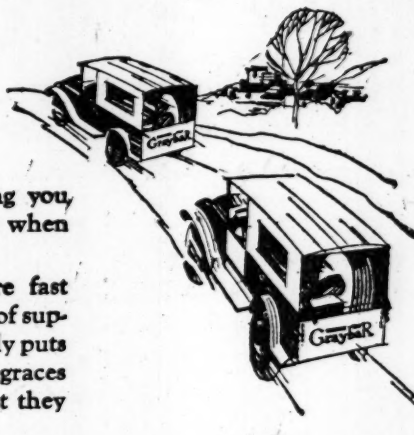

The sale was completed yesterday by cable. The house originally was built for Louis Sherry 20 years ago. Munsey remodeled the building to make it fireproof. He had made extensive plans for new gardens and the firm he employed was in the midst of this work. The price paid by Mrs. Vanderbilt was not disclosed, but it is understood the Munsey estate had been asking $450,000.

SPORTSMEN PLAN BANQUET FOR LONG ATLANTIC AVIATOR

Testimonial Dinner to Given in New York
Evening After Capt.
Lindbergh's Return.

A banquet for 2000 persons in New York in honor of Capt. Lindbergh for his aviation achievement is being planned by an organization known as the American Sportsmen. It is proposed to have champions of many lines of sports at the speakers' table. Theodore Roosevelt will preside.

Mayor Miller was apprised of the plan today in the following telegram from Roosevelt and R. Sinclair, chairman of the Banquet Committee, in New York:

"The American Sportsmen's testimonial banquet in honor of Capt. Lindbergh will be held at the Hotel Astor on the evening after June 30, the return of the aviator to the United States. Col. Theodore Roosevelt will toastmaster and every champion of every branch of sport will be the speakers' table. You can attend, and may we also use your name as a member of the Reception Committee? The banquet limited to 2000, at $10 per cover. Please wire or telephone us receipt of this."

Mayor Miller said he was withholding his reply to learn whether Capt. Lindbergh plans to return, the belief the aviator may wish stay in Europe a number of weeks. The Mayor, as the city's representative, received a number of telegrams congratulating St. Louis on the achievement of its flyer. Among them were:

Hamilton Bryan, Lieutenant Commander, U. S. N., Boston: "Lindbergh act sportiest and most world-absorbing accomplishment in history."

Mayor Louis E. Roddewig, Davenport, Ia.: "Davenport joins extending our heartfelt greetings and congratulations on the wonderful victory over the sea by the Spirit of St. Louis. There is no greater human achievement."

Traffic Department, Nashville: "Chattanooga & St. Louis, Rally Chattanooga, Tenn.: 'Congratulations on Lindbergh's success. Let him fly back.'"

Dr. George R. Connors, former Mayor of Clifton, N. J.: "Congratulations to you and all people of your city. You must all feel proud of Capt. Lindbergh's achievement, which plain Spirit of St. Louis, May 1927, was St. Louis' perfect day."

Two baseball games, National League won one baseball game, American League won another and international glory as king of the air, by Capt. Lindbergh. Congratulations to the Captain's mother and to all of you, his friends."

Senator Paul Dupuy of France, owner of La Petite Parisienne, Excelsior of Paris, today called his congratulations to President Harold Blahy of the Chamber of Commerce. Senator Dupuy was in St. Louis for two days in November, 1923, during a tour of the United States.

"With all my heart," he called "I share your joy in the triumph of your fellow-citizen, Capt. Lindbergh. Paris and the whole world today praises the wonderful spirit of St. Louis."

Many cablegrams were sent to St. Louis to Capt. Lindbergh, Paris, on Saturday afternoon, and subsequently, and special arrangements were made for their delivery.

GOLF MATCH DECIDED BY SPECIAL RULE

Dr. I. R. Davis of Forest Park Victor Over Herbert Lorenz of Sunset, 1 Up 18 Holes.

By Jack Alexander

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Section. ST. LOUIS COUNTRY CLUB, May 23.—A special rule governing play today in the St. Louis District Golf Championship held at Forest Park in his first round match with Herbert Lorenz of Sunset Hill Country Club, 1 up.

Dr. Davis and Lorenz, 1926 district junior champion, played the match on a par 36 course, 18 holes this morning, and Lorenz won the extra hole and was reported the victor.

But the executive committee went into session afterward to pass on a difficulty that arose at the sixth hole, when Dr. Davis took his drive, and ruled that the player lost only distance, instead of ball and distance, under U. S. G. A. regulation, and that instead of being tied at the eighteenth hole, Dr. Davis was one up and the winner of the match. Dr. Davis and Lorenz had considered the sixth hole as won by Lorenz in their tentative record of play; but the lesser penalty gave Davis a half. The new accounting of strokes gives Dr. Davis a 76 to Lorenz's 78 for the 18 holes.

Walter Haller, of the Creve Coeur Golf Club, defeated Lester Slattery, also of Creve Coeur, 2 and 1. Haller shot a 78 and Slattery an 80.

Their cards:
Haller: 543 445 255—37
Slattery: 553 554 344—41

Wolff in Fine Form.

Clarence Wolff, defending title holder, got the jump on the field by playing his first match yesterday, an off day. Clarence easily defeated Fred Schambach of Forest Park, 8 and 7.

Wolff was in splendid form, going out in 34 strokes, one under the mark scored for the first time by Eddie Held, medalist, in a qualifying round.

Wolff's card:
Out ..... 533 444 344—41
In ..... 44

In another Sunday match, Robert Orthwein advanced to the second round by beating Regina Belleville, 1 up. Orthwein scored an 80 and Belleville an 81.

FIRST ROUND RESULTS.

Yachtsmen's Sloops Sail.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 23.—Eight ten-meter sloops delivered here to New York yachtsmen sailed recently for Marblehead, where they probably will arrive by the end of the week. In a race held Tuesday under the auspices of the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron, John V. W. Reynolds' Esquimaux sailed by Gordon Raymond, defeated Twilight, Clifford D. Mallory and Valencia, Carroll B. Aker.

GREAT FIELD COMING FOR LOCAL DERBY

Probables Include Fred Jr., Jock, Osmand, Chance Shot, Whiskery or Bostonian, and Bradley Stars.

PETERSON IN HIS THIRD 18.2 MATCH
Charles Peterson, local billiard virtuoso, will meet P. E. Whitney tonight in the billiard theater in the third of his 18.2 matches with leading amateurs, in which he plays 600 to his opponents' 250 in two blocks of 300 to 125 each.

Among the eligibles here that are intended starters in the race is Jock, which finished third in the Kentucky Derby after leading the field from the start to well into the stretch. Jock has trained in excellent fashion, during the past week, and was withdrawn from the Granger Memorial handicap as a precaution against injury before filling such important engagements as the Fairmount, American and Leland Derbies.

Trainer John F. Schorr probably will transfer the colt to Fairmount Park within the next 10 days.

Fred Jr. Is Coming.
Fred Jr., which ran a fine race in the Kentucky Derby, is slated for shipment to Fairmount next week. He will fill his engagement in the Derby there and later go to Washington Park for the American Derby.

The Idle Hour Farm stables probably will have two representatives for the Fairmount feature. See, winner of the Louisiana Derby and which was deprived of a chance at Kentucky Derby honors due to unsatisfactory training, and Bully Bauer or Bewithus, are likely starters for the pretentious establishment.

J. E. Widener, who won the Fairmount last year with Haste, is sure to send Chance Shot and possibly Osmand.
Trainer Freddie Hopkins, who saddled Whiskery, winner of the Kentucky Derby, is coming west next week with Pandora, an intended starter in the Kentucky Oaks, to be run here May 30. It is believed he will at the same time ship to Fairmount one of the H. P. Whitney eligibles for the Fairmount Derby. After the running of the Oaks, Hopkins probably will proceed to Fairmount to saddle his Derby charge there.

INDIANA JAVELIN STAR IS INJURED

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., May 23.—Walter Rinehart, Indiana University javelin thrower, suffered a broken nose and a badly bruised right arm in an automobile accident yesterday which is expected to keep him out of the Western Conference track and field meet at Chicago Saturday. He was thrown from an automobile in a collision.
Rinehart who won the javelin throw at the Drake relays with a throw of better than 198 feet had been named as almost certain winner in that event in the Big Ten meet. He won the state intercollegiate title in the event Saturday with a throw of 197 feet.

Hair Troubles are Peculiarly Individual

IS IT not, therefore, obviously nonsensical to suppose that some preparation for general use will correct any, and every form of hair trouble?

The Thomas Scientific Scalp Treatment is a personal service rendered by experts who study your case and select and administer the treatment necessary to correct your particular trouble. This is why the results of the Thomas System are so uniformly satisfactory. Experts do all the work—you just present yourself regularly for treatment.

Positive proof of their success can be seen at any Thomas Office. Applicants for treatment are frankly told if their case is not hopeful. It is this straightforward dealing that has made the name Thomas a synonym for trustworthiness.

O'FARRELL'S ANSWERS

Pitcher A leaves the game, behind 12 to 6. During the term of Pitcher B both teams score bringing the score to 15 to 9. In the ninth Pitcher B's team scores five runs and the final score is 15 to 14. Who is the losing pitcher, A or B?—S. S. BEREST.

Pitcher A is the losing pitcher.

(1) In one of our games a player of one went behind the catching screen to see what the pitcher was throwing. The umpire noticed it, told him to go to the bench and called out the batter out. Was he right? (2) Can the batter be called out when a number of his own men stand along the baseline and swing bats?—LOUIS R. LAMB.

(1) The rules require all members of the team at bat, except those engaged in play, to sit on the bench. The umpire may order any others to the bench and on refusal, banish them from the game. But he cannot call the batter out.

(2) The same rule applies here. It is the duty of the umpire to keep the players on the bench.

(1) Runner on first. Batter fouls ball out of the lot. As umpire, I sent runner back to first at the same time giving the pitcher another ball. The pitcher saw the batter step into his box and threw to the first baseman who tagged the runner. I said he was not out and that he was free to return to the base so long as he made no effort to go to second. Was I right? (2) Batter hits toward first or third. Ball hits bag, bounces back toward home and rolls foul. What is it? (3) Same, except ball passes bag and goes foul. (4) Ball hits fair, rolls foul and then rolls fair inside of first or third. Is it fair? (5) Runner on third. Pitcher balks. Can the umpire send the runner in? R. D. S.

(1) You were right.
(2) Fair ball.
(3) Fair ball.
(4) Fair, unless touched by fielder on foul territory.
(5) He must. All base runners advance on a balk.

RYDER CUP SQUAD WILL TAKE PART IN METROPOLITAN OPEN
NEW YORK, May 23.—A field of 135 starters, including all but one member of the Ryder Cup team, which is to represent the United States against Great Britain in this country, will get away in the Metropolitan open golf championship Wednesday over the 6501-yard Wyckoff Country Club course at New Rochelle, N. Y.

Among the ranking professionals who will compete are Gene Sarazen, the title holder; Walter Hagen, Joe Turnesa, Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel, John Golden, Mike Brady, Bill McElhorm, Emmett French and Bobby Cruikshank. Of the Ryder Cup team, only Al Watrous has failed to enter.

Age and Youth Compete in Dog Feature Tonight

Professor Looks Best of Old Guard Against Pup Quartet in Eighth Race.

The field for the eighth race tonight at the Madison Kennel Club is an interesting mixture of speedy youngsters and tried veterans. There are Playgoer, Sword Buckle, Stuntney Chance and Billy the Verger, of the pup class, against Sult Side, Professor, Actor Boy and Silver Tip.

Sword Buckle and Billy the Verger won their last starts, the latter turning the quarter in 25.4 seconds. This was the second fastest quarter of the meeting. Professor ran it one-fifth of a second faster.

Park Patrol, a hot tip in his first out locally, starts again in the sixth race against fast company. He failed to get anything in his initial effort, but is expected to do better this time. Third Tipp has run in two races since the season opened and may be primed to win here.

The seventh brings together Prince Pat and Spalding Bowser, winners of their last races. Wasteful Girl, Glenhapple, Mounted Ranger, Warm Water, Pearlman and Red Line complete the field. Charley Sterling believes Wasteful Girl will give a good account of herself. She will be remembered as the winner of the Fall derby at Madison Park.

Illini to Play Purdue Tomorrow
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, May 23.—Bennie Oosterbaan's distinction of never having played on any but a championship team since entering the University of Michigan may remain unbroken in baseball, despite the Wolverines' disastrous Big Ten start.

By winning her two remaining games Michigan can tie Illinois for the title, even should the Illini win their final game of the year at Purdue tomorrow.

Should Illinois lose and Michigan win, the championship would go to the Wolverines unless Minnesota, which has played only three games, should show unexpected class and sweep her remaining schedule.

The Oosterbaan championship charm has succeeded twice in football, twice in basketball and once in baseball.

Michigan Favored In Track Events

Wolverines Appear Class of Big Ten Conference Gathering This Week.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, May 23.—Michigan has come through the last of her Big Ten dual meets a slight favorite to capture the conference track and field championship at Madison, Wis., Friday and Saturday of this week. Michigan outclassed Ohio State, 89 to 46, last Saturday.

Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Ohio State are the other Big Ten teams whose performances have led their supporters to the hope that they may be returned victors. Michigan uncovered an unheralded winner against Ohio in Schraevand, who hurled the discus 144 feet, 4 1/4 inches. Northrup's running broad jump of 24 feet 1/2 inch was another high mark which, if repeated at Madison, should assure the Wolverines a first in this event. Northrup is also a possibility in the pole vault and javelin, in both of which events he has high marks.

McGinnis, Wisconsin's all-round star, who is one of the country's outstanding hurdlers and high jumpers, will get sharp competition in both events—from Cubel of Iowa and Irwin of Ohio State in the hurdles and from Burg of Chicago in the high jump. There also will be a smart field against McGinnis in the pole vault.

JUNIOR BARGE RACE OPENS RACING SEASON
St. Louis Rowing Club captured the initial event of the river season yesterday when it won the Brennecke-Pittsboro cup in a half-mile junior barge race ending at the foot of Angelica street. Central No. 1 and No. 2 finished second and third, the former shell sinking as it passed over the finish line. The crew was rescued promptly but the shell was recovered some distance downstream.

A collision between the Baden and North End shells at the start threw both out of the race.

RECORD ARCTIC FLIGHT

Friends Are Said to Have Advised Against Another Paris Trip.

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, May 23.—Indications today were that Commander Richard E. Byrd would attempt to establish a long distance flying record over the Arctic, or the Pacific, in place of his proposed flight to Paris.

His brothers, Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia and Thomas Byrd, and close friends, New York papers understand, have urged him to abandon the Atlantic venture because of Capt. Lindbergh's success. Another crossing, they are reported to have told him, might be considered as an effort to detract from Lindbergh's story.

Neither Byrd nor Rodman Wanamaker, his financial backer, would comment on the future plans of the expedition. The Byrd flight in its tri-motored Fokker monoplane, America, was designed as purely a scientific expedition.

CHILD INSTANTLY KILLED WHEN RUN OVER BY STREET CAR

Motorman of Kirkwood-Ferguson Trolley Says He Didn't See 15-Months-Old Girl on Track.
Betty Jean Harper, 15-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Harper, of 1834 Irving avenue, Wellston, was instantly killed at 9 o'clock this morning when she was run over by a northbound Kirkwood-Ferguson street car moving over a private right-of-way directly behind the Harper home.

The child was playing in the rear yard and apparently wandered out on the embankment tumbling down just as the car was passing. The motorman, Riley Evans, of 5979 Romaine place, declared he did not see the child on the track until after he had stopped.

The rear truck of the car passed over the child's body and there was no evidence to indicate the front of the car had hit her. The motorman and conductor were held pending an inquest.

HANGHAI TRADE CONCERNS STILL FOR INTERVENTION

Foreign Business Men in City Raise Fund for "Educational" Campaign in Home Countries.

MANCHURIAN WAR LORD LOSING POWER

Man Apparently Is Tired of Him — Nationalist Chances Bright if They Heal Rupture.

By THOMAS F. MILLARD, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

SHANGHAI, May 23.—Removal of early foreign military attention temporarily diverts attention from China's international situation and again resolves the situation into the seemingly perpetual tug-of-war between Chinese political and military factions.

However, it is premature to discuss intervention as an important factor, for it is unlikely to become a reality at any time.

Foreign business elements in China, although for the time being stated in their attempt to bring about intervention, do not intend to abandon their efforts. They carry on the fight until they are convinced it is useless.

"Educational" Campaign Planned.

A private meeting of business men last week appointed a committee to get funds to carry on an "educational" propaganda campaign in America and England to prove intervention is the only solution of China's problems.

The correspondent understands that at that meeting $250,000,000 foreign investments ($1,750,000,000) were represented, and that it was planned to raise $1,000,000 to secure public opinion in the home countries and to secure protection for those investments.

Regarding a recent statement by British investments in China for $200,000,000, it should be understood that amount represented capital stock, not ownership.

While exact figures are unavailable, it is well known that the war part of British corporations and other property in China is valued at $1,000,000,000.

Therefore, if all the so-called foreign investments were wiped out, the British would lose the loss of $1,000,000,000.

Similar conditions prevail regarding American investments, although the proportion of Chinese capital is less. The Americans owned the business of selling foreign goods in China, and the Japanese after the British had previously cornered the market.

This principle is true of all foreign investments except the Japanese, who actually finance a portion of their commercial operations.

The foreign position in this regard is based on the old treaty system and is threatened with destruction by the present course of the Nationalist movement, which the Japanese will resist to the limit.

The latest developments in the official and military situation are a reversion to the old-time diplomatic reasoning. Speculation exists concerning possible support from powers may give to the Japanese military.

Moreover, that Japan intends to bring Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian chieftain who holds Peking, is also said British financial interests in China purpose supporting Wu Pei-fu, the former "Christian General" now at the head of the so-called Nationalist forces.

Secret Deal Reported.

Behind these familiar rumors reports of secret agreement between the British and Japanese governments for co-operation to support the Chinese Nationalist movement toward the north and suppress Russian influence.

The correspondent believes these reports have little foundation. They illustrate largely the inability of most persons to figure the Chinese situation except in terms of old orientation.

In reality it seems that the Japanese are ready to discard Chang Tso-lin, who appears marooned in Peking, unable to return to Mukden with northern elite to go.

China's former power in Manchuria has been slipping for some time. Conditions indicate that Japan is tired of his military adventures, in which he has expended great wealth and for which he has drained the resources of Manchuria.

Japan is now leaning toward a shake-

SHANGHAI, May 23.—Removal of early foreign military intervention temporarily diverts attention from China's international position and again resolves the situation into the seemingly perpetual among Chinese political and military factions.

However, it is premature to discuss intervention as an important factor, for it is likely to become a very issue at any time.

Foreign business elements in China, although for the time being content in their attempt to bring about intervention, do not intend to abandon their efforts. They carry on the fight until they are convinced or are convinced it is a loss.

"Educational" Campaign Planned. A private meeting of business men last week appointed a committee to get funds to carry on an "educational" propaganda campaign in America and England to prove intervention is the only solution of China's problems.

The correspondent understands that at that meeting $350,000,000 foreign investments ($1,750,000,000) were represented, and that it was planned to raise $1,000,000 to come public opinion in the home countries and to secure protection of these investments.

Regarding a recent statement that British investments in China total $300,000,000, it should be understood that amount represents capital stock of Chinese-owned companies. While exact figures are unavailable, it is well known that the large part of British corporations' other property in China is re- Chinese-owned.

Therefore, if all the so-called foreign investment were wiped out, probably three-fourths of the loss would fall on Chinese.

Chinese and American Investments. Similar conditions prevail in American investments, although the proportion of Chinese ownership is less. The Americans own the business of selling for- corporate protection to the base after the British had pet- well cornered the market.

The principle is true of all foreign investments except the Japanese, who actually finance a majority of their commercial operations.

The foreign position in this respect is based on the old treaty system and is threatened with de- by the present course of Nationalist movement, which interests will resist to the limit.

The latest developments in the national and military situation reveal a reversion to the old-time policy of reasoning. Speculation about possible support from powers may give to the dif- Chinese military.

It is also said that British interests in China pur- supporting Wu Pei-fu, against the invasion by Feng Yu- the former "Christian Gen- now at the head of the Nationalist forces.

Secret Deal Reported. These familiar rumors of secret agreement between the British and Japanese governments for co-operation to the Chinese Nationalist movement toward the north and suppress Russian influence.

The correspondent believes these have little foundation. The situation largely the inability of persons to figure the Chin- situation, except in terms of field orientation.

Henry E. Huntington, Rail Executive, Philanthropist And Art Collector, Dies

Had Been in Philadelphia Hospital Since Operation, May 4 — Nature of Ailment Withheld by Doctors.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Henry E. Huntington, railroad executive and philanthropist of California, died in Lenoxau Hospital here today.

Mr. Huntington, who was also internationally known as a book and art collector, was 77 years old. He had been in the hospital since May 4, and had undergone an operation. He was in the same hospital two years ago when he was rushed across the continent for treatment by Philadelphia physicians. Information as to Mr. Huntington's ailment was withheld. Members of his family at the bedside when he died included two daughters and a sister.

Career Similar to Uncle's in Railroad Circles.

In many respects the career of Henry Edwards Huntington in the railroad world was similar to that of his famous uncle, Collis P. Huntington, who was among the first of the country's big railroad men and a pioneer in the idea of transcontinental railroad traffic. The most marked contrast between the two men was that Collis P. Huntington was primarily a railroad builder, while his nephew, whom he started in the railroad business, became one of the country's most successful railroad directors.

Having acquired fortune had about all the fame that was possible out of railroads, Henry Edwards Huntington turned his attention to art and books and became internationally known as the owner of one of the finest and most valuable private collections of art in the world as well as a library that was said to be unsurpassed by that of any other individual.

Although of a family that had won fame and fortune in railroads and born Feb. 27, 1850, in the railroad city of Oneonta, N. Y., Mr. Huntington did not incline toward railroading when he was ready to enter business. After an education in public and private schools in Oneonta, he went into the hardware business in that city when he was 19. At the age of 20 he became associated with a large hardware concern in New York, where he remained several years, and next engaged in the lumbering and logging business at St. Albans, Vt.

It was here that his uncle first took notice of the young man's ability and named him as superintendent of construction of the Huntington line, the building constructed from Louisville to New Orleans. The railroad became known as the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southern. Later, Henry Edwards Huntington became superintendent and receiver of the Kentucky Central Railroad, and in the next few years held the posts of vice president and general manager of the Elizabeth River, Lexington & Big Sandy Railroad, and vice president and general manager of the Ohio Valley Railroad.

Director in Many Lines. In 1892 he became connected with his uncle's greatest railroad system—the Southern Pacific—taking the position of assistant to the president. He remained in that position until 1906 and eventually became vice president of the line. Having acquired considerable money, Mr. Huntington began to turn his attention to other interests in addition to railroads and became active in development projects in Southern California. While in San Francisco for the Southern Pacific he acquired the San Francisco street railway. This he sold in 1898 and bought into the Los Angeles street railways and eventually acquired all the street railways of that city. He then turned to the development of interurban railways in Southern California, acquired a group of new regime in Manchuria, which may be headed by Chang's son under Chinese and Japanese advisers. Chinese generally believe Chang Tso-lin fears to return to Mukden because there is there outstanding $20,000,000 of unsecured paper money which the people were forced to take. The proceeds were spent on fruitless military campaigns to the south.

Chang Tottering Power. All signs indicate that Chang's authority and prestige are definitely waning and may collapse at any time, even at Peking, where some observers expect Feng Yu- to reappear soon. In that event the entire northern faction would break up completely.

Not much sense can be made from the mass of reports about the Chinese military movements. These changes due to frequent shifts of allegiance by Generals who are on one side today and on the other tomorrow.

It is evident that a complete shakeup is going on throughout middle and north China with the outcome uncertain. The general trend still seems to favor the Nationalists provided they compose their internal quarrel.

There is evidence that much trouble has been brought to bear to reconcile Chiang Kai-shek with the Hankow regime. Chinese reports say Michael Borodin's visit to Kiukiang was preceded by a visit of several Russians to Nanking where they talked with Chiang and then went to Kiukiang to meet Borodin.

This attitude of Russians connected with the Hankow regime was probably due to order from Moscow where it seems to be realized that a permanent split in the Kuomintang may undo Russia's work in China.

Reliable advices have it that Chiang, while still opposed to the communist left wing, realizes the danger of a split and is anxious to avoid a definite collision until the northern party is defeated and the Kuomintang power reaches Peking and Tientsin. Therefore appeals to delay warfare between the two factions. The opinion stated the college, since 1918, had been recognized only part of the time by the State Board of Health as a "reputable medical college," was the meaning of the State medical practices

SUPREME COURT CANCELS CHARTER OF DIPLOMA MILL

Ousts St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons for "Unlawful Sale" of Medical Degrees.

DECISION RAKES DR. WALDO BRIGGS

Follows Lines of That Last June Against Similar Institution in Kansas City, Mo.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 23.—Forfeiture of the State charter of the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons, for "unlawful traffic, barter and sale" of medical diplomas and "willful misuse" of its corporate powers, and privileges, was ordered today in a unanimous decision by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc.

The decision, which means ouster of the college, sustains charges in a quo warranto proceeding filed in Supreme Court by former Attorney-General Robert W. Otto in June, 1925. The suit was filed at the request of the State Board of Health, as a result of disclosures in 1922 of fraudulent traffic in medical diplomas in Missouri.

The college has been in existence since it was incorporated, Aug. 8, 1876, and for the last 32 years has occupied a building at Jefferson avenue and Gamble street, St. Louis.

Dr. Waldo Briggs of St. Louis, president, treasurer, dean and general managing officer of the college, is criticized in the opinion for practices involving the admission of unqualified students to the college, granting of fraudulent advanced credits, and issuance of graduation diplomas to students who had not completed the required course of study.

Edwin J. Bean of St. Louis acted as Special Commissioner of the Supreme Court to take testimony in this suit and a similar one against the Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery. His report, filed with the court in March, 1926, said the evidence substantiated the charges of diploma sales and "gross misrepresentations of charter privileges" against both colleges. He recommended forfeiture of their charters.

Briggs' Deal With Adcox. Today's opinion, written by Judge F. E. Adcox, said in part:

"That Dr. Briggs entered into a written agreement with Dr. Robert Adcox of St. Louis, in 1927, by which Adcox was to solicit students for the college and receive one-half of all fees they paid. This arrangement continued until October, 1923, when Adcox was arrested on a charge of bribing a county school superintendent to secure a fraudulent certificate of high school graduation to a student desiring to enter the college.

(Adcox's license as a physician was revoked by the Board of Health. He was committed to the penitentiary for two years for the same offense. The conviction was reversed on appeal and Adcox released, by the Supreme Court, on a confession of error by the State, that he was convicted for which he was convicted was not covered by the law on bribery.)

That Adcox, with the knowledge of Briggs, procured fraudulent certificates of preliminary diploma for prospective students, and that they were admitted to the college on these false credits. Adcox also procured fraudulent medical school credits for students to enable them to enter the college with advanced standing and to graduate without attending for the required four years. Students benefiting from these fraudulent credits were charged sums in excess of the regular tuition.

That Andrew Draser of California paid Adcox and Briggs $800 in 1922 and received a diploma from the college, attending the school only part of one year. Another diploma was sold to Harry J. O'Connor of Chicago in 1922 or 1923, without his having attended the college. No entrance credentials could be found for many of the students and work of students could not be traced by the records.

Briggs. The court adopted Bean's finding that such practices "constituted a fraudulent exercise of charter powers to grant degrees," and was such "willful abuse and misuse" of powers and franchises as to justify forfeiture of the charter.

The opinion stated the college, since 1918, had been recognized only part of the time by the State Board of Health as a "reputable medical college," was the meaning of the State medical practices

CHINESE FIRST TO MAKE USE OF PROPAGANDA

Eighteenth Century Emperor Employed Art Europe Utilized in Great War.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 23.—Although it took a world war to develop it into an element of everyday life, propaganda, like powder, and printing, was produced in China long before Europe and America became aware of its possibilities.

Emperor Ching Lung, who ruled over China in the Eighteenth Century, wanted his people to believe that his domain embraced the world. So he had printed a book in which 42 European peoples and 231 tribes were represented as paying tribute to him, this being shown not only through the text but with engravings.

His book is included in a Chinese collection on exhibition at the Congressional Library, which also embraces a few volumes printed in the Twelfth Century, 500 years before the art of printing was developed in Europe.

ENCLOSED PILOT'S CABIN TO BE COPIED IN FRANCE

European Aviators Inspect Lindbergh's Plane, Find It Greatest Single Improvement.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1927. PARIS, May 23.—European aviators are examining the Spirit of St. Louis carefully to discover what technical improvements, if any, assisted Capt. Lindbergh in making his successful flight.

"The thing that has made possible such a flight," said Sir Alan Cobham, "has been the gradual improvement in the design of aircraft and the ever-increasing reliability of aircraft engines."

All agreed that while the American plane was beautifully constructed, the only really new feature was the pilot's enclosed cabin, which protected him from the numbing effects of wind and weather. This feature will doubtless hereafter be installed for long flights.

Most of the aviators here are also of the opinion that Lindbergh proved that complicated navigation instruments were not only impractical, but unnecessary, and that good working with a good compass and maps is the best method for flying.

Louis Bleriot, the man who first flew across the English Channel, is convinced that a monoplane with a thick wing is superior to a biplane. He thinks it is sturdier, vibrates less and is easier to guide, and hence is less wearing on the pilot.

U. S. SHIP UNDER MACHINE GUN FIRE ON YANGTZE RIVER

Destroyer Preble Replies to Attack With Its Main Batteries — Northerners Bombard Chingkiang.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 23.—The American Destroyer, Preble, was raked with Chinese machine guns on the Yangtze River Friday night, says a Shanghai dispatch to the Daily Mail, and replied with its main armaments. It is believed much damage was inflicted.

This dispatch reports that Northern Chinese batteries bombarded Chingkiang, across the Yangtze, for two hours yesterday morning, most of the shells falling on the property of the Standard Oil Co. One tank is said to have been set on fire.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hongkong says the fire in the Standard Oil Co's tank was extinguished. Local Chinese, alarmed at the possibility of further fire, it adds, have requested the oil companies to withdraw their stocks from the city.

Two Japanese Destroyers Fired on Chinese

By the Associated Press. SHANGHAI, May 23.—The British consul at Chingkiang has been withdrawn. All archives of the consulate also were removed. Fear Admiral Tyrwhitt, commander of the British naval forces in China, has arrived here. The Japanese destroyers Hinoaki and Yanagi were fired on yesterday off Kiangyin, 100 miles up the river, by Northern Chinese from the left and Southern Chinese from the right bank. The Yanagi replied and eluded the attackers. Neither vessel was damaged.

GOOD-WILL FLIGHT CHIEF STARTS FRIENDSHIP TOUR

Maj. Dargue Will Visit Eastern Cities; Socks Sanction for Canadian Trip.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 23.—Maj. Herbert A. Dargue, who led the army Pan-American flight, hopped off from Bolling Field today on a goodwill tour around the Eastern half of the United States.

Dargue, accompanied by Walter O. Lochner, president of the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, will make his first landing at Harrisburg, Pa.

The flight may take Dargue to Montreal and Ottawa if the Canadian Government complies with the request of the War Department that he be permitted to take his plane across the Canadian border.

STIMSON DEFENDS U. S. FOR ENDING NICARAGUAN WAR

Declares Everybody in That Country, Except Liberal Press, Is Well Satisfied With Situation.

SAYS BOTH SIDES KILLED PRISONERS

When U. S. Intervened, He Adds, Country Was Approaching Anarchy.— Desertions Numerous.

By the Associated Press. NORFOLK, Va., May 23.—Everybody in Nicaragua is pretty well satisfied with the situation now with the exception of the Liberal press. Henry L. Stimson, President Coolidge's personal representative, said here on his way back to Washington yesterday.

"We feel a great deal of satisfaction," he said, "in that we have succeeded in quelling the bloodiest and cruellest revolution of modern times."

Stimson landed here shortly after 3 o'clock on the light cruiser Trenton. He will make his report to President Coolidge today.

"Comparative peace is reigning now," Stimson declared, "and the contestants are very patiently awaiting the elections next year which are to settle the whole matter now in controversy."

"We derive a great deal of satisfaction out of the fact that we have been able to quell a revolution with such comparative ease. When the United States took a hand in matters, the country was rapidly approaching complete anarchy. Both the Liberals and the regulars were conscripting men, and desertions from both sides were numerous. The deserters carried rifles with them and the bloodiest of bloody revolutions was in progress."

"Neither side was taking any prisoners—they were killing the weak and the wounded. And both sides were equally guilty of this cruelty."

The killing of Capt. Richard B. Buchanan and Private Marvin Jackson of the Marine Corps, the only two American casualties, was the result of "just an unfortunate affair," he said, engineered by a group of bandits who came into the town of La Pas Centro under no particular leadership.

"The number of troops there will be lessened through the coming months," he said. "A native constabulary is being organized under American officers and will greatly lessen the necessity of American troops in the area for the preservation of peace."

This constabulary will function until the elections and the Government restored to some kind of stable basis, when it will be possible for the United States to recall all of its expeditionary forces, he added.

RUSSIA TO BUY U. S. MACHINES IN PREFERENCE TO ENGLISH

Serebrovsky Says American Technical Methods Will Be Used in Industrial Expansion.

By the Associated Press. MOSCOW, May 23.—Soviet Russia will copy American, not English, technical methods in projected industrial expansion, said A. P. Serebrovsky, vice chairman of the Supreme Council of public Economy, yesterday.

He said Russia did not want a break with England, but added that if England's unfavorable attitude toward commercial relations continued, the Soviets would cease to purchase from England even those commodities England was best able to supply, such as steam turbines, boilers, electric equipment and textile machinery.

"We are more interested in German and American systems, chiefly American, inasmuch as American affairs the best example of technical organization," Serebrovsky said. "England cannot give a good example because English factories have become obsolete and their prices are high. Since we are interested in expansion, and since it is plainly expedient that equipment for the projected factories should be ordered either in America or Germany where American systems have been adopted recently and from which country the equipment will be practically the same as American."

Heavy Storm Damage in Portugal. LISBON, May 23.—Much destruction was caused in Northern Portugal last week by violent thunderstorms. At Gouvea bridges and mills were swept away, trees uprooted and extensive sown areas swamped. At Balmira 12 workmen were struck by lightning and seriously injured.

REVISION WREID BY MILLS IN CORPORATION TAX SYSTEM

Survey Proposed for Equalizing Federal Levy by Assistant of Secretary Mellon.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 23.—Revision of the present system of corporation taxation is urged by Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the Treasury, in an article appearing in the current issue of "The Nation's Business." A congressional survey with a view to working out a permanent system is recommended.

The purpose of this survey, Mills says, should be to determine "whether the burden is excessive, from the standpoint of the prosperity of our industries; whether it is distributed with some degree of equity; whether it ultimately rests; whether it is wise to tax all corporations, irrespective of their character, on the same basis and at the same rate; the extent of discrimination between incorporated and unincorporated business; and whether the corporation income tax does not constitute serious discrimination against the small stockholders of moderate means."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Public Utility Aggression.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE article in the Post-Dispatch of Sunday, May 15, by Charles G. Ross, on the valuation of public utilities, in my opinion, touches the high-water mark of modern American journalism.

The day of the personal editorial gladiator is past. Issues are no more to be determined by rough-and-tumble argument, by rhetorical bombast and the resort to discourses. So complex has become the maze of facts and forces that the only way to disentangle is by dispassionate and scientific analysis—light without heat.

Mr. Ross after an exhaustive study, set forth in lucid, untechnical and forceful English, without a touch of spleen or malice, the facts of a highly involved subject which it would require a volume of lawyers' jargon to cover and which only a lawyer could understand.

Possibly this is just exactly what ails the Supreme Court. It has nothing but lawyers' elongated "briefs" from which to extract an opinion. Certainly Mr. Ross' exposition has convinced it either of a shocking deficiency of intelligence or an equally amazing hardening of the arteries against justice when administered in the popular interest. It is difficult to imagine a more patriotic service or a better insurance against radicalism and violence than to expose to the sterilizing rays of publicity the blunders and wrongs of government, which, if left to ferment, would lead straight to disaster.

If the public utility consumers of the country were as well organized and captained as the public utilities themselves they would bring action under the Constitution to resist the public utility aggression on the ground of extorting or the taking of money in public utility charges without value received.

The Post-Dispatch could do no better public service than to hammer on this thing, printing the opinions of honest and intelligent men everywhere, until there would not be a statesman or a judge in the country who could afford to turn a deaf ear. An admiring and hopeful clientele looks to you to carry on the battle.

The Bergmann Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
IN answer to "A Suburbaner," it was the legal act of murder as it regarded capital punishment that I was attacking in general, and in particular the case of young Bergmann because of the fact that two of our most reputable psychiatrists had pronounced this boy insane and not responsible for his acts. One doctor disagreed. This last doctor was employed by the State.

The Bergmann boy has an insane mother. He is feeble-minded to the point of great danger in that he may be influenced by criminals to do their will. Therefore, in my humble opinion, he should be housed in an institution for the criminally insane, and treated, but he was normal. I should say the intermediate reformatory or penitentiary for life with proper work to keep him sane.

I do not subscribe to the idea of capital punishment at all.

MRS. MABLE HINKLEY.

If the City Had Owned the Gas Plant.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
BECAUSE ST. LOUISANS have burned a great amount of gas during the last three years, a few men who controlled the gas company have cleaned up several million dollars in profit.

It is contended by many that municipal ownership and management of public utilities is much more inefficient than private ownership and perhaps there is some truth in that claim. If the city had been in control of the gas company during the past three years there might have been a hundred or more unemployed men on the payroll, and the management might have been barely able to pay the expense of operation.

Yet would this not be more beneficial to the community and business as a whole to have those profits divided among many unnecessary workmen than to have them monopolized by a few private owners?

Of what value to the community is this boasted efficiency, when its fruits are reaped by a handful of men?

O. S.

High Price of Coke.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
LOOKING over the report of the Anti-Smoke Committee one plainly sees that "change to coke" is the outstanding remedy to reduce smoke and all would be willing to change to this light and easily handled fuel if the price were more reasonable. Coke burns well, when properly handled, and keeps the furnace much cleaner than soft coal.

In view of the attempt of our gas company to further squeeze us, the great need of St. Louis stands out—a municipal coke and gas plant. The by-products of a coke plant are many and valuable and if the two main products were sold to citizens of St. Louis at slightly above cost it would almost support itself.

Some individual or organization should take the lead in this and carry on independent of the present Anti-Smoke Committee as they have received contributions from sources that would be affected by this move. The need is here. The only question is what plan will we use.

JAY WRIGLEY.

WHEN HE COMES BACK.

When Capt. Lindbergh returns he will be greeted with an acclamation never, perhaps, accorded another individual. We have seen how France, electrified by the daring of this incomparable youngster, hailed him in a frenzy of clamorous and colorful homage as his plane, after circling the lighted heavens in silver sweeps, alighted with perfect grace in the pandemonium of Le Bourget. France was expressing not only her own but the world's admiration for a supreme achievement, supremely wrought.

The fine and characteristic adulation of France had an especially appealing quality because of the sorrow in her heart for her two great sons who failed and died where Lindbergh triumphed and lived. And while the whole world grieves with France in her bereavement, we know, nevertheless, that there is an anguish in her loss which no other nation can quite share. By the same token, Lindbergh is ours, and in his glory there is a family pride, a blood partnership, which is ours and ours alone.

And here, too, there are degrees of consanguinity. New York is already preparing to fete and fiddle the aviator who has done the impossible on a new scale of hero worship. In so doing, New York meets the country's expectation. Our other cities, too, will vie in honoring Capt. Lindbergh. But St. Louis is his home. It was here he completed and perfected his professional education. It was in the service of St. Louis that he acquired that experience in which he attained his professional proficiency. It was in St. Louis he found the means with which to make his dream of glory come true. And in a spirit of filial loyalty he placed the name of St. Louis on the plane which will take its place in the museum of aircraft and will live forever in the song and legend of flying.

So when Capt. Lindbergh comes back to St. Louis, St. Louis must rise to the superb occasion. We must make it a rubric day. We must plan and carry out a memorable ceremonial. There must be distinction in our tribute—the distinction of beauty.

St. Louis has the genius to do this. Our St. Louis men and women of talent should be consulted. A program must be formulated which will be a fitting climax to the epic audacity and victory of our smiling, charming, wonderful boy.

According to Mr. Stimson, who appreciates how utterly impossible it is to please everybody, all factions but the Liberals are satisfied with the Nicaraguan peace.

OUR CRITICS' COMPLAINT.

When American literary critics become downright serious and inquire why we haven't a great literature, they seem always to arrive at the same conclusion. The time and scene, they decide, are out of joint so far as the American literary man is concerned. He is the victim of an antagonistic environment, in which, as Emerson said, "things are in the saddle and ride mankind."

But when it comes to helping matters, the critics do not go far. The best they have been able to do in this way to date is point to an American environment which, so they say, was not antagonistic to the writer—namely, that of Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne, Whitman, Melville, Margaret Fuller and their contemporaries. It was only then, assert the critics, that the American scene combined with genius to produce a fine literature. To have such another, therefore, we must have not only genius, but a sympathetic and provocative environment as well. This advice has just been given us, for the nth time, by Van Wyck Brooks. In his "Emerson," and Louis Mumford, in his "Golden Day."

So far, nobody seems to have questioned this complaint. Nobody has pointed out that a too sympathetic environment might paralyze some artists quite as easily as a too antagonistic one does others. Surely it would make the satirist impossible, since he is not a mere photographer, but a critic, and hence thrives in an adverse atmosphere.

Nor has anybody ever attacked the argument of our critics at perhaps its most vulnerable point, by showing that it is one which critics have voiced in every age, and that even those of Emerson's day did so. It is just the old complaint that things are not what they used to be, which some wit once disposed of by saying that "they never were."

To say that Mr. Charles A. Munroe of Chicago is a shrewd business man does not do him justice at all. A chap who can extract four million gold dollars out of Laclede gas in three short St. Louis years is an alchemist.

BUDDY SAMPLE.

Lindbergh's celebrated one-man feat, as well as the different one-man bands that have in time beguiled us, are all very well, but what about Buddy Sample? Buddy is the one-man track team of the high school at Webster Groves, Mo. He won the interscholastic carnival at Manhattan, Kan., for his school last Saturday, scoring two firsts and two seconds for a total of 16 points. This was one more point than the team from Ponca City, Ok., made, and like the rest of the 67 schools competing, the Ponca team was made up of a group of athletes. Six hundred students competed.

Buddy won both the shotput and the discus throw. He was second in the running broad jump and the javelin throw. He was all there was to the Webster Groves team, and it was enough to conquer all the glittering galaxies of athletes from Nebraska, Oklahoma, Illinois, Texas, Missouri and Kansas. When Webster marched upon the field there was only the incredible and incomparable Buddy, a host in himself. We take our hats off to him. He stands with that immortal group which numbers in its ranks the victorious and the unsupported. The roster to date reads: Achilles at the siege of Troy, Hercules at his celebrated pillars, Roosevelt at the battle of Santiago, Horatius at the bridge, Alexander the Great in the Polo Grounds, Lindbergh over the Atlantic and Buddy Sample at Manhattan, Kan.

A cluster of stars, indeed. We give Buddy hail!

Those who wonder why Mr. Coolidge won't do anything perhaps forget that this is a Democratic flood.

Harry Sinclair, in case you have overlooked him, has become the leader of a great cause. "In my sentence," says he, "are involved not merely my personal rights, but the rights of every decent, high-minded, liberty-loving citizen, who cherishes principles above self-interest." That puts him on a par with Dehony, who, if you remember, took over Elk Hills from motives of purest patriotism.

BAD BUSINESS FOR ST. LOUIS.

The reorganizers of the United Railways are trying to realize the wild dreams of its organizers. The old company was conceived in sin and born in iniquity. The juggling of high finance reached its apex when the financiers piled $96,000,000 of securities on the property. Two-thirds of it was water, representing no investment and having no value, unless it were squeezed out of the straphangers of St. Louis.

The financial juggling of the old company came to a bad end. The balloon was wrecked. The company went into the hands of a receiver. The reorganizers are taking it over on the basis of a $40,000,000 valuation. They have obtained a valuation for rate-making purposes of about $60,000,000 from the State Public Service Commission, and are asking the city to enter into a contract by which they will be assured a 7 per cent return on $60,000,000.

In order to frighten the city into accepting a service-at-cost franchise for 30 years at a $60,000,000 valuation, the reorganizers have applied for and are trying to get a valuation of $100,000,000. They are raking up every possible hiding of the company to offer as an asset, tangible and intangible. The property is valued not at what was paid for it, but at what it would bring on a speculative market. Reproduction cost now is stretched to the utmost limit, and the whole mass of water is to be turned into good money from the street car passengers if the reorganizers gain their end.

We do not believe Messrs. Newman and Watts and their associates will be able to put over this speculative job. Nevertheless, under present conditions, under the ruling of the United States Supreme Court and many commissions, the city is menaced by the public utility jobbers. At best, the city will be plundered, and at worst it will be a riot of plunder.

It behooves St. Louis to take prompt steps to protect her citizens against exploitation. Comprehensive plans should be made to find out precisely what St. Louis needs in the way of transportation in the future, and to get what she needs at reasonable cost. Dealing with public utility speculators on their terms is always bad business.

COMPARISON.

After a shower of large and small gifts, the campaign to insure the continuance of the Symphony Orchestra is closing with only one $5000 three-year subscription needed.

Upon the receipt of such a subscription the fate of the orchestra hangs, since 11 other $5000 gifts were made on condition that 12 be forthcoming.

It is a tantalizing and disappointing situation. It is as though Lindbergh had landed at Ronen.

THE ANDREWS FAILURE.

Gen. Andrews and Maj. Haynes are both out, and the enforcement of prohibition is again placed in new hands. The successors to the retiring officials are unknown in a national sense. One of them was former Lieutenant-Governor of New York. The other has had some experience in prohibition work. It is fair to assume that they are men of good ability. It is understood they were selected by the President, on recommendation of Secretary Mellon, who believes they are qualified for this task.

Will they succeed where so many others have so signally failed? That question is agitating the public mind. Fairness requires that they be given their chance. Nevertheless, the turbulent and wretched history of the movement is utterly against them.

The failure of Gen. Andrews is, perhaps, the most demoralizing defeat which prohibition has suffered. His appointment, it will be recalled, inspired some hope for results. A man of resolution and capacity had finally been put in charge. He had no illusions about his job. He knew the enforcement organization, broadly speaking, was corrupt and inefficient. He planned reorganization on a drastic scale. He recognized the situation as war. He was going to meet it as such. In one of his earliest announcements he explained how he intended to militarize his force. Political pull was to be extinguished. The old warrior was to have first class fighting men as his staff officers. The discipline of the field was to permeate the whole enforcement army, from Generalissimo to private in the ranks.

His plan of campaign seemed sound. He would not be concerned much with minor violations. The hip-pocket flask he regarded as an incident. The big fellow was his adversary. The source of supply his objective. And the testimony of those who know, witnesses entirely out of sympathy with the movement, is that Gen. Andrews has "worked his heart out" trying to establish a measurably respectable degree of enforcement.

He failed. Why? Public sentiment. The American people have not accepted prohibition. Their opposition has grown from the first. We believe that opposition is more determined today than any previous time in the experiment. As a sign of the times we might cite the action last week of the American Medical Association, which reversed the position it took in 1917, which in effect held that alcohol had no scientific place in medicine. At that time did the doctors simply bow before the gale of dry fanaticism? Anyhow, they have tried practicing their profession under legislative intimidation and restrictions, and they have changed their minds. They now want to prescribe alcohol according to their judgment of their patients' needs. They dare to say so. Our physicians are no longer afraid of the Antisaloon League.

In one way or another the fear of Mr. Wheeler and the Westerville (O.) junta is disappearing. About the only pusycroppers that are left now are the so-called leaders of our major political parties. And their Fabianism becomes constantly more diffident. How long they can straddle the issue with meaningless, hypocritical declarations on law enforcement nobody can say, but every sensible citizen knows that a question which occupies first place in the thought and discussion of the people cannot indefinitely be dodged or shelved by the politicians. This issue has got to be faced, honestly and constructively, by either or both of the major parties, or a third party will be born, as Dr. Butler of Columbia has predicted.

To hold that the American people have been irrevocably committed to a hopeless fiasco and a ruinous blunder is to deny the American people's sanity, courage and political genius.

A public utility financier is one who puts the people over one burdle after another.

"MR. SINCLAIR SAYS HE WON'T GO TO JAIL."

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

CRIMINAL SYNDICALISM.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

CHARLOTTE ANITA WHITNEY, a niece of the late Supreme Court Justice Field, and past vice president of the National Woman Suffrage Association, president of the California Civic League and president of the California branch of the American College Alumnae, must now serve from one year to 14 years in San Quentin prison unless there is executive clemency for the offense of being a member of an organization more or less affiliated with the Moscow International—the communist labor party of California—though she never advocated violence against law, and hated violence. The Supreme Court of the United States has said so, and the decision is final. The "antisyndicalism law" of California is formally and unequivocally sustained.

The Supreme Court should not be a respecter of persons. It proves that it is not in this decision. It must not stretch the bull-of-rights features of the Federal Constitution to prohibit the exercise of police powers by a state when a state regards such powers as essential to the preservation of public order. It must not interfere with the state's right to determine what its own conditions demand. And in Los Angeles, San Francisco and elsewhere, we all remember acts of barbarous violence associated with communist agitation. Such acts produce the public sentiment that demands the limit in restrictive legislation.

But the fact remains that the personal hardship of imprisoning this woman with convicts would create vast and general resentment among women who have regarded her as a feminist leader. When Upton Sinclair rather gratuitously introduced his personality into the case and Gov. Richardson answered him defiantly a year ago last November, The Eagle said editorially:

Neither the author of "The Jungle" nor any other radical has failed to realize that a niece of Supreme Court Justice Field and a pioneer suffrage worker, serving a long term at San Quentin for her opinions would be immensely more valuable to radicalism than the same woman could possibly be anywhere else. Fortunately, there is a way out that throws no reflection on the sanctity of law or the justice of the courts. Friend W. Richardson, who could not grant a pardon without stultifying himself after his letter to Sinclair, is no longer Governor. C. C. Young is the State's chief executive. He is not hampered. Miss Whitney always refused to ask a pardon for herself, from the time of her conviction by a war-psychology jury in 1925 of an offense in 1919. But a pardon is possible now, and it will accomplish more for the cause of orderly conservatism than a full 14 years at San Quentin for Miss Whitney could conceivably accomplish.

WASHINGTON CITY IN 1928.

From the Washington Star.
A SUGGESTION is advanced by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia that Washington be chosen by the Democratic party for its national convention in 1928. Senator Glass is a National Committeeman from his State and will have a vote on the question when it is considered at the meeting held in this city next December to arrange for the great gathering in June. His vote, of course, will not carry the motion alone, but the arguments which he presents before the committee should have great weight. . . . Other cities have larger halls, but the success of a convention does not depend upon the size of the audience. . . . The fact that neither of the major political parties has ever held a nominated convention in the national capital does not justify an indefinite protracted rejection of this city as an appropriate meeting place.

A NEED FOR LEVEL HEADS.

From the New Haven Journal-Courier.
WE are not competent, nor are we inclined to discuss the note sent to the Government of the United States by the Government of Great Britain dealing with the divergences of opinion and unfriendly estrangements which have grown out of the discussion of the war debts. We have no disposition to take as our cue that of many farcious nationalities, who are for their country "right or wrong." It is wholly conceivable that such misunderstandings as have arisen between the two friendly Governments have been created by the limitations and extravagances of international intercourse and not by deliberate cunning and political perfidy. We are more concerned over the fact that a misunderstanding has arisen between two Governments, which of all Governments on the face of the earth ought to be and remain on terms of friendship. They represent the same ideals and seek the same civilizing ends. There should be nothing in the way of a difference that cannot be ironed out at a conference table. For them to fail to quarrel over details in the debt settlement, or permit pride of opinion or unintentional misstatement to provoke a feeling of enmity, would be of incalculable seriousness to the welfare, and possibly, the peace of the world. If we have a sense of pride and honor which must be jealously guarded, so have the British. The chances of either being wholly in the right may be temperately questioned, but to permit assumed chances of being in the right to develop into a diplomatic crisis would be a crime against civilization. There is a need for level heads in the Foreign Departments of both English speaking countries.

A Great Poem

TRISTRAM. By Edwin Arlington Robinson. (The Macmillan Co. and The Literary Guild, New York City.)

In Tristram, Edwin Arlington Robinson adds another mastery poem to his Arthurian series, and it is to be hoped that he may add still others until the whole great epic shall have been recreated in terms of his unique and powerful personality. Those who are familiar with his Lancelot and Merlin need not be told that in dealing with these ancient tales Robinson is concerned with what is timeless in human nature, and that the significance of the result is quite as "modern" as Ford and Flappers. It is being said that Tristram is a greater work than either Lancelot or Merlin, but it seems probable that the statement means no more than that the subject matter of Tristram is more romantic. It is said also that Tristram offers less difficulty to the average reader than does either of the other poems; but Robinson is still Robinsonian, which is to say that no lay reader can hope to grasp what has meant most to him in the telling of even this passionate romance. One must brood over and reread that Robinson tells, Tristram, published by the Macmillan Co., has been chosen for distribution among its subscribers by the Literary Guild along with a critical appreciation of Robinson's work by Carl Van Doren.

PROSPECTIN' FOOLS. By A. M. Chisholm. (Chelsea House, N. Y.)

The adventures of "Skokum Bill" Hutchins and Sam Dobbs, prospectors extraordinary—no heroes, certainly, but recognizably human. This is not an average "Western" novel.

THE LONE ADVENTURER. By Stanton A. Coblentz. (The American Press.)

A long narrative poem of exceptional merit, setting forth the conflict between man's spiritual vision and the pressure of material interests. Mr. Coblentz is a critic as well as a poet, and his book on "The Literary Revolution" recently published, deserves far more attention than it has received.

AMUSING COMEDY CLOSES FINAL WEEK AT EMPRESS
"One of the Family," Satire on Domestic Discord, Presented by National Players.

The National Players are closing their season at the Empress this week in "One of the Family," a comedy by Kenneth Webb, the final performance to be given next Saturday night. This is the thirty-eighth week for the company, the fifth season, during which time uniformly good presentations have been made of plays, good, bad and indifferent.

This one is good, a fair specimen of the many pieces of satirical realism based on the great American family and its unlovely bickerings. Don Burroughs is Henry Adams, much victimized and henpecked by a set of selfish, parasitic relatives. He brings home a bride, Gladys Hurlbut, whom the Adamses undertake to treat as "one of the family." Result: Rebellion on the part of the bride and a new declaration of independence on the part of Henry Adams. Alice Baker, by a large margin, is the star as the domineering aunt, Priscilla Adams—so unfair, so hateful, so femininely feminine. Capable work is done by Bobby Reed, Edward Darney, Francesca Rotoli, Jane McDuffie, Rosalind Hightower and Juliette Clarendon. Maurice Franklin reappears in the cast for this final week.

ROBERT T. SMALL, NEWSPAPER WRITER, DIES IN SLEEP

Was First Reporter to Be Identified by Associated Press, Because of Story of Fleet.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Robert T. Small, known by his writing to newspaper readers in many states, is dead at 46. Death was caused by heart disease while he slept at his hotel.

As superintendent of the Southern Division of the Associated Press and a writer for the Consolidated Press Association, the Washington Post, the Washington Star and the Philadelphia Public Ledger, Mr. Small was looked upon as a reporter of unusual versatility, covering during his many years of service subjects ranging from baseball to battlefields, horse racing to politics.

LINDBERGH'S HOSTESS FORMER ST. LOUISAN

MRS. FARNELY HERRICK.

CAPT. LINDBERGH'S hostess in Paris is a former St. Louisian, Mrs. Farnely Herrick, daughter-in-law of the American Ambassador, Myron T. Herrick. She formerly was Miss Agnes Blackwell of St. Louis. Her marriage to Farnely Herrick was a society event 20 years ago. They have lived in Cleveland and Paris. Since the death of Mrs. Myron T. Herrick, she has been first lady of the embassy.

She is a daughter of Mrs. A. M. Blackwell of Long Beach, Cal., and sister of Harry A. Blackwell.

Social Items

The entire junior class at Mary Institute were guests of Miss Dorothy Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Coleman of 5042 Washington boulevard, Saturday, at an all-day party at an old farmhouse near Forest Hill, Mo. The place was Mr. Coleman's boyhood home. The trip was made in a double-deck bus.

Junior Promenade, the biggest social event of the Smith College calendar, was held Friday evening, in the Scott gymnasium. Only Juniors and Seniors were allowed to attend, while Sophomores, who were fortunate enough to have served on committees, looked on from the balcony.

Girls from St. Louis who attended the "Prom" festivities are: Miss Mary L. Lumaght, Miss Martha Dyer, Miss Virginia Condie, Miss Frances McConnell, Miss Jenny Nathan, Miss Frances Galt, Miss Julia Hafner, Miss Wilhelmmina Howard, and Miss Martha Schuyler.

Both Miss Natalie Moffitt and Miss Janet Kaufman of this city, members of the Sophomore class at Smith, are on the Garden Party Committee. Garden Party, which is the first event of the "Prom" week, was held in the quadrangle on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russell Akin of University lane returned home last night from a visit in New York.

Mrs. Uriel Sobres will depart tonight for her home in Kansas City after a brief visit with her niece, Mrs. J. D. Perry Lewis of 5089 Westminster place. A number of the visitor's friends have been invited informally for tea this afternoon.

Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Drummond of 4843 Lindell boulevard and Miss Marian Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Leigh Green of 112 Kingsbury place, departed last week for a motor trip to Syracuse, N. Y., where Mrs. Drummond will visit her son, Douglas D. Drummond, and Miss Green will be in the bridal party of Miss Mary Van Durn and John Wilkinson Jr., whose marriage will be celebrated Saturday. Later Mrs. Drummond and Miss Green will go to New York and to Princeton, N. J., where they will visit Mrs. Drummond's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Drummond, before returning home about June 8.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Jarboe of 4321 McPherson avenue, and Mrs. Jarboe's sister, Mrs. J. L. Bill of Louisville, who has been spending the winter with them, will depart Tuesday for a motor trip to French Lick Springs. Later they will go to Louisville, where Mrs. Bill will remain for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Jarboe will be away two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. W. Fischer of 4626 Wilcox avenue, will sail May 28 on the Republic for Germany and Switzerland to be gone five months visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Anderson of the "A Bar A" Ranch, Wyo., are being congratulated upon the arrival of a daughter, last-week, by covering during his many years of service subjects ranging from baseball to battlefields, horse racing to politics.

He was the first for whom the Associated Press broke its rule that none of its writers shall be identified, when the organization met a wide demand for his name after he had written the story of the American fleet's trip around the world.

at the Gatesworth Hotel. Twelve guests were present.

Mrs. J. K. Wass of the Forest Park Hotel is convalescing at St. Luke's Hospital after a recent operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benoist of 4821 Pershing avenue and their family will spend the summer at Estes Park, Col. They have leased their summer home at Jamestown, R. I.

Invitations have been issued for the fourth annual dinner of the Johns Burroughs School Association to be held Friday evening, May 27 at the school. Mrs. William C. D'Arcy is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and the following hostesses will assist her: Mrs. L. E. Smith, Mrs. Warren Goddard, Mrs. Tyrrell Williams, Mrs. Mortimer Burroughs, Mrs. E. M. Grossman, Mrs. L. M. Grace, Mrs. Royall Switzer, Mrs. M. G. Seelig, Mrs. Gertrude Meaton, Mrs. Harland Bartholomew, Mrs. R. C. Day, Mrs. J. T. Templeton, Mrs. T. G. Ratcliffe, Mrs. F. V. Deolope, Mrs. Guy W. Oliver, Mrs. Branch Riekey, Mrs. Wm. Kerwin, Mrs. F. L. Davis, Mrs. A. C. Brown and Mrs. Geo. Titman.

The Week's New Films

MISS LOIS MORAN, who plays movie heroines as if she had just finished reading the Little Colonel books, and has drawn more sighs from idealistic young men than any actress in Hollywood except Betty Bronson, may be seen to advantage this week in "The Whirlwind of Youth" at the Missouri. The story was written by Hamilton Gibbs, himself an idealistic young man, but both Gibbs and Miss Moran reckoned without their movie director. This director evidently has the idea that a kiss is a permanent condition afflicting a man and a woman simultaneously. Miss Moran is always a delight and throughout the picture there are moments of fresh and youthful magic. Brooke Johns, on the stage, still has his New York accent, though his pronunciation of "wonderful" is growing a little careless.

Oui, Oui, Marie.
IN spite of its title "The Night Bride," at the St. Louis, manages to be entirely acceptable entertainment. Those who anticipate seeing Marie Prevost in a series of boudoir scenes will be disappointed. She acts the part of a wealthy madcap who sets forth to capture a woman hater and writer of books. The author's most recent title is "Women: The White Man's Burden," and until Marie rides into his life in a witty sport conductor the poor man knows nothing whatever about women. What he learns from Marie probably would spoil him forever as a literary expert on the sex, but he makes a very nice husband as played by Harrison Ford. The vaudeville is no great shakes.

Widow's Speeds.
LAURA LAPLANTE gets herself into a tapestry draped corner by pretending she is the widow of Tom Moore, who is supposed to have been killed in Africa. When Tom turns up the result is what Universal's title expert has dubbed "The Love Thrill" and it may be studied at the Grand Central this week. There are several artistic shots of Miss LaPlante in a stop-in, but otherwise the piece is trivial.

It Happened in Paris.
IF Paris is anything like it appears in "The Demi-Bride" at Loew's State this week, Slim Lindbergh had better get right out of that town on the next boat. Lew Cody and Norma Shearer have an amazing time. It seems that in Paris little convent girls make eyes at any man who pokes his head over the garden wall, jab dishing repellers into their calisthenics instructor, and chase off to bachelors' apartments as soon as Sister Mathilde has her back turned. Norma falls in love with Lew, who in turn is in love with Norma's step-mother. The step-mother is a lady with blond hair who absently leaves stray men around her house every time Papa goes on a business trip. When the reviewer left, Norma was two kisses up on her step-mother and it looked as if she'd get Lew.

So Did This One.
A MILLION BID" at the Ambassador is an interesting if preposterous melodramatic piece for a week.

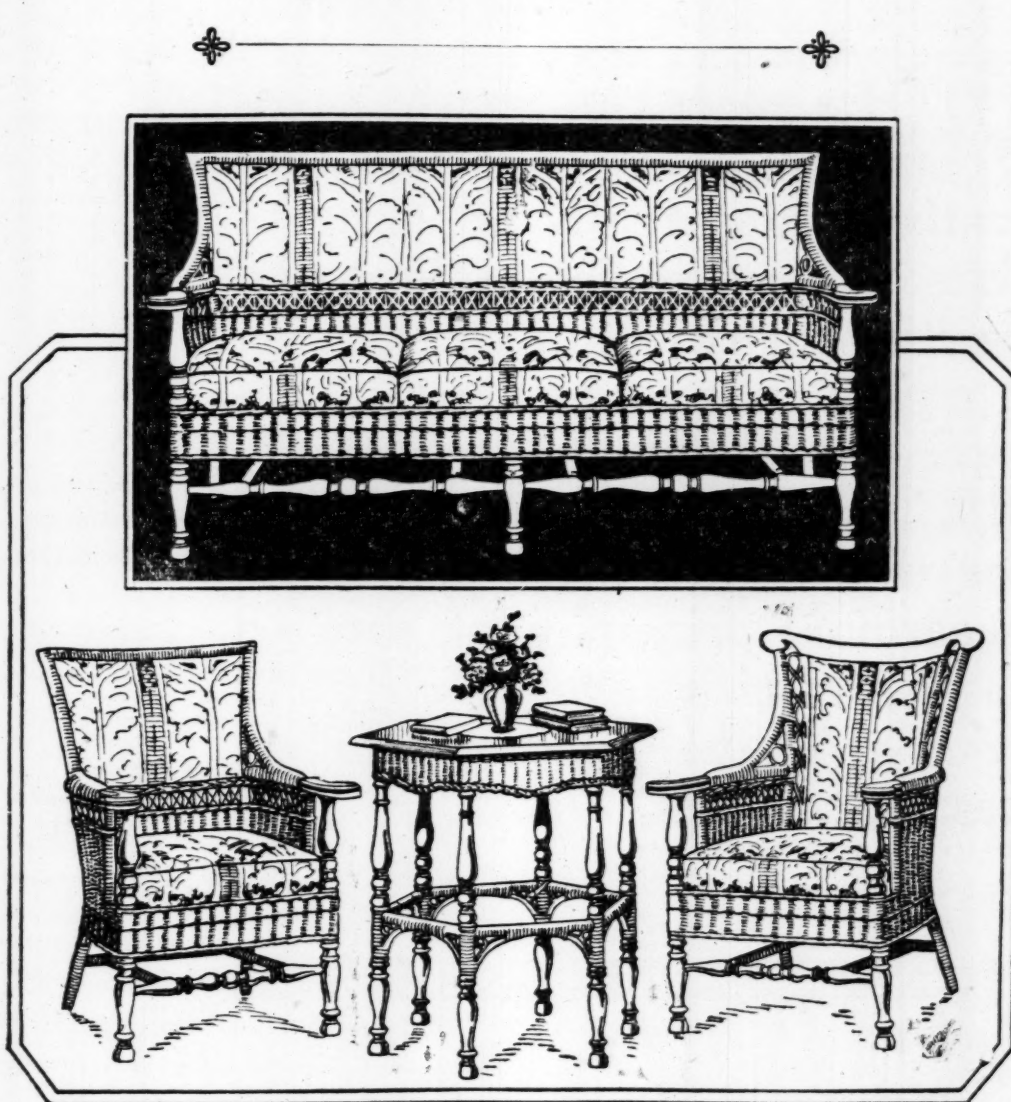

played by Dolores Costello and Malcolm McGregor. It is significant only for the fact that it marks the debut of Betty Blythe in a mother role. Betty's critics remarked years ago that it was time for her to become a mother and settle down. She isn't so docile in this picture, and when she embraces her daughter, Dolores, the poor girl looks roughly treated, but any woman who wants to live a good life on the screen should be encouraged. The story relates how Dolores' husband, left for dead, turns up with a lost memory after she has married a young doctor. The doctor operates and restores his memory, but he nobly goes away, pretending his mind is still a blank.

Elsie Janis Injured in Dancing Act.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 23.—Elsie Janis, vaudeville star, today was confined to her home in Tarrytown owing to a sprained right shoulder and elbow, suffered when she slipped in her dancing act at the Palace Theater. She is expected to be unable to resume her preposterous melodramatic piece for a week.

Started Business Career as Clerk in Country Store, Came to St. Louis in 1871.

Samuel Graham Wilson, 74 years old, of 28 Washington terrace, general manager of Carleton Co., died yesterday at St. Luke's Hospital from a complication of diseases.

He was born at Petersburg, Va., and started his business career as a clerk in a country store. Coming to St. Louis in 1871, he traveled for years for Chase & Cabot, Crow, Argandine & Co., and Wear & Boogher Dry Goods Co. He is survived by his widow and six children: Asah, N. H. Wilson, Samuel Graham Wilson Jr., Mrs. Thomas Hennings, Mrs. Reed McCallan Brown, Mrs. McDougal Smith and William B. Wilson.

WOMAN IS KILLED AND SIDESWIPING CAR SPEEDS AWAY

Mrs. Roy Devers Fatally Hurt, Four Others Pinned Under Auto Upset by Another Machine.

Mrs. Roy Devers, of 1415 Angell street, was killed early today, when an automobile in which she was riding with her husband, was sideswiped by another machine as it sped past them, overturning the Devers' car, at St. Francis and Costello avenues, Florissant.

The machine sped on, leaving Mr. and Mrs. Devers and their three-year-old son and two other members of the party lying under the overturned machine.

Accompanied by John Devers, brother of Roy, and John West, the Devers were returning to St. Louis after the evening had been spent at the home of friends in Florissant. John was driving. The machine which struck the Devers car cut in sharply as it passed, the rear end crashing into the front end of the Devers machine.

Doctors who were called said Mrs. Devers was dead when they arrived.

The other members of the party were only slightly injured. After receiving first aid treatment, they were taken to their homes.

Negro Boy, 4, Struck by Auto Dies of Meningitis.

Charles Ward, 4 years old, a Negro, died at Isolation Hospital yesterday afternoon of meningitis resulting from injuries suffered April 18, when he was struck by an automobile while attempting to cross the street in front of his home, 423 West Ashland avenue. William Muench, 4431A St. Louis avenue, driver of the machine, told police following the accident that the boy, who secured permission of the brain and internal injuries, ran in the path of his car. Muench was arrested yesterday and gave bond to appear at an inquest this morning.

Child Seriously Hurt at Edgemont Station: Driver Held.

While Agnes Lutz, 4 years old, of 1309 North Thirty-seventh street, East St. Louis, was crossing State Highway No. 12 near Edgemont station with several playmates yesterday afternoon, an automobile driven by George Redearin, of Salem, Ill., struck her. She was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where the child's condition is said to be critical. Redearin is being held. An automobile driven by George E. Knaus, 2102 North Nineteenth street, East St. Louis, struck C. W. Bude Jr., 4, as the child ran into the street in front of his home, 2113 North Nineteenth street, last night. The boy was only slightly injured, doctors at St. Mary's Hospital said.

10,000 EXPECTED TO ATTEND FLOOD CONTROL CONFERENCE

Mississippi Valley Conference Meeting June 2-4, Will Outline Legislative Program.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Statesmen, Governors, Mayors, bankers and business men will come together here in one of the greatest peace-time movements in the nation's history, when the Mississippi Valley Flood Control Congress convenes June 2, 3 and 4. Ten thousand delegates from 27 Middle Western states are expected.

The main object of the congress is to arrange a means of insuring the country against another disaster such as the present floods. Its sponsors include Mayors O'Keefe and Miller of New Orleans and St. Louis. It is their hope to arouse sentiment for Federal action to such a degree that no one will dare to oppose a definite flood control program.

The congress expects to name committees of engineers and others to go over the situation from every angle of cost, time required and similar features, combining these into a report and recommendations which are to be submitted to the Government for action by Congress.

Mexican Rebels Rob Engineers.
MEXICO CITY, May 22.—Rebels robbed three mining engineers Tuesday last when they were traveling near Tasco, state of Jalisco, they reported on arriving here last night. They are Samuel Wright Atkins, American, formerly of La Salle, Illinois; T. Skews Saunders, English, and O. Jensen, Danish. They did not harm them, but took all their valuables.

RECEIPTS $500,000 AT AUCTION OF FURS

Thirteen thousand five hundred black seal-skins were sold at auction today for the United States Government at the Fur Exchange.

Second and Elm streets, at prices averaging about 25 per cent less than those which prevailed at the last semi-annual auction. The decrease was attributed to a general decline in fur prices and prompted New York buyers to predict increasing popularity for seal-skin garments because of expected lower prices. Fifteen hundred of the skins, classed as "dogwood brown," sold at prices about 15 per cent higher than at the previous sale because of the rarity of this type of skin. The remainder of the skins, the ordinary "black" seal, sold consistently at lower prices. The sale was conducted by the Fouke Fur Co., which had dressed the skins for the United States Department of Fisheries. Philip B. Fouke, president of the company, estimated the receipts at $500,000. All of the skins came from the United States seal reserve on Pribiloff Island, off the coast of Alaska, which the Government took over in 1911. Henry O'Malley, United States Commissioner of Fisheries, who attended the auction, said the seal population had increased from 132,000 to 755,000 in those years although in that time 300,000 male seals had been killed for their skins. The carcasses of the seals are reduced to a meal which is fed to foxes on Government farms on St. George and St. Paul islands nearby. Several hundred blue fox pelts from these Government farms were also sold at today's auction together with several lots of seal skins from private sealers operating off the Siberian and Japanese coasts. The Government seals are killed semi-annually and are tanned and shipped to St. Louis for dressing and sale. Australian Trade Discussed. Trade conditions in Australia were outlined to St. Louis manufacturers today by United States

AIRMAN'S FEAT HAS REAL DIPLOMATIC VALUE

Lindbergh Has Done Much to Renew Friendship of France and America.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1927.)

WASHINGTON, May 23. — Charles Lindbergh has done something more timely than merely to demonstrate the value of aircraft. He has introduced a note of concord in an international situation which needed just a touch to bring back a realization of the friendship that has prevailed in the past and should prevail between the French and the American people. It will be noted that Ambassador Herrick took charge of the young hero, the messages were exchanged between the President of France and the President of the United States, that Lindbergh called on the mother of one of the unfortunate French flyers, and that the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung in Paris in the last 24 hours as the Stars and Stripes were unfurled enthusiastically to the breeze.

To do that by one act of daring which gripped the admiration of the whole world is something so worth while in international relations that its benefit cannot be measured in terms of a day or month. The misunderstanding over the weather reports, the erroneous reports in the French press at the time the French flyers set forth and the general background of unfriendliness which has prevailed since the debt question has been agitated made the opportunity for a quick appeal to the emotions of the French people something as unparalleled as the flight itself.

The government here is pleased, indeed exuberant. Diplomacy knows what it means to get a whole nation speaking in praise of an American. It reminded the French of the heroic exploits of the American troops in the war. It brought back memories of the time when Franco-American friendship was unmarred by any discussions either of bad sportsmanship or materialistic things. And if the effect was impressive across the Atlantic it was equally so on this side. For the reports from France of anti-American feeling in the last two years have had their reflex on this side of the water. And this is the year when the American Legion makes its pilgrimage to France. Those who love France have been hoping that the sight of the American doughboys would revive the friendship that once existed between the French and Americans.

Charles A. Lindbergh was a sort of advance emissary. He has done by a single stroke more to put Franco-American relations on a plane of human friendliness than the diplomats could have done in years.

AUSTRALIA READY TO AID IN FLIGHT TO THAT COUNTRY
Opinion in Melbourne Is That Such a Trip Would Be Easy for Lindbergh.

By the Associated Press.
MELBOURNE, May 23. — The report that Capt. Lindbergh intends to make his next flight to Australia brought the statement from the acting director of civil aviation today that his department would co-operate fully in such a flight.

Enthusiasm over Lindbergh's New York-Paris victory is such that the opinion is generally expressed that an aerial voyage from America to Australia would be comparatively easy for him.

SHANGHAI TRADE CONCERNS STILL FOR INTERVENTION

Hankow and Nanking have been effective.

Hankow Near Collapse.
Reports from Hankow show that the Communist regime there is verging on collapse, although it continues an attitude of bravado. It seems doubtful if the Communists can depend even on the troops now in Hankow and several quasi-hostile divisions are nearby. The Chinese population of the city is panicky, expecting a political overturn.

Diplomatic circles were enlivened last week by a snappy exchange of notes between British Legation Observer Newton and Eugene Chen, Hankow Foreign Minister. These cover familiar ground and are not likely to have serious effect. The incident, however, shows that Chen can at any time stand off foreign diplomats in writing notes.

Another incident apparently without meaning or effect was the so-called naval battle off Wusung, when a few shots were exchanged between Chinese warships and the American destroyer. But without material damage to either side. The Nanking Government is in great need of money. It has announced a "national liberty loan," levied on leading Chinese business men and amounting to over $3,000,000, "secured" by the maritime customs revenue of this port. Chinese newspapers doubt that that amount can be exacted from firms that have been squeezed many times in recent years.

Reform in Shanghai.
Chinese hope the presence of Sir Miles Lampson, British Minister to China, who arrived here Friday, will open the way to discussion of "reform in the Shanghai Municipal Government." That is certain to be opposed by local British interests and the Municipal Council.

The outcome will indicate whether Britain and other powers intend to revise the treaties and adopt a policy of conciliation or stand pat on the status quo until the next outbreak.
Less anxiety is felt about anti-foreignism, and some foreigners are returning to interior stations against consular advice. The trade stagnation is expected to continue until the Yangtze is reopened for traffic and the rigid defensive measures relaxed around the international settlement.
The tension is somewhat eased, but the atmosphere is highly charged.

Flyer and Mother in First America-Paris Phone Talk

"Splendidly Well Done," Parent Says to Lindbergh
After New York World
Arranges Call to Detroit.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World
Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer
Publishing Co., New York World
and Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, May 23.—Yesterday was Mother's Day for Capt. Charles A.
Lindbergh.

By arrangement of the New York World he had a telephone conversation with his mother in Detroit and received her congratulatory message: "Splendidly well done."

His was the first voice to reach the United States from Paris and his mother's words were the first human speech to France from the United States.

This reserved youth showed emotion for the first time when, after this conversation, he told the World correspondent, "That's all I needed to make my arrival perfect."

But that was only part of his Mother's Day program, the joyful part. Sadness came when he paid a visit to Mme. Nungesser, mother of the French ace, who, with Major Coll, sailed audaciously in the sky two weeks ago on the same flight and was never definitely sighted after he left the French coast.
The American conveyed to the French mother the respectful homage of a brave man who mourns for a gallant rival.

When the telephone conversation with his mother was ended a large number of newspaper men were awaiting Lindbergh.
"What did she say?" eager voices asked Lindbergh. The modest hero replied, "She said everything was all right at home."

Proudest Moment of Day.
But from the flush on his perfectly composed face, now showing no sign of fatigue, it was easy to see this was the proudest moment in his day of adulations.

He did not know until he awakened in the Ambassador's house at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon that the New York World had arranged for the first telephone call ever made from Paris to America to follow his first New York to Paris flight. The details were arranged between the World's London correspondent, and the writer, so that the mother's voice would be communicated from the wireless telephone in London directly into the telephone in the American embassy in Paris.

MRS. LINDBERGH TELLS OF DELIGHT AT CHANCE TO SPEAK WITH SON

From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
New York, May 23.

It was just 10:40 o'clock yesterday morning that a cablegram, received at the New York World editorial office, announced that Lindbergh would be on the wire at 4 p. m., Paris time—11 a. m., New York time.

A long distance call to Detroit brought a clear-voiced greeting from the aviator's mother in five minutes.

"Yes, this is Mrs. Lindbergh."

"Do you know that your son, in Paris, is going to be on the air and wire at 11 o'clock, fifteen minutes from now?"

"He is!" the telephone carried the little gasp of delight and then: "How soon, do you say?"

She was informed.

"Oh, isn't that wonderful?"

"You will stand by to get it, Mrs. Lindbergh, any minute."

"Will it?" there was a little break and then: "Won't you please thank the New York World? Thank them again and again."

In another five minutes it was flushed that Paris, London and the long distance department of the telephone company were all standing by, clearing lines, setting up connections that mother and son might exchange their greetings.

Shortly before 4 o'clock Lindbergh, as composed as if he had done nothing extraordinary in life, was sitting quietly with Ambasador Harrick and the correspondent of the World when, as warned, the London call came through at five minutes to 4. Mr. Balderston said to me, "I just had Detroit; get Lindbergh on the phone."

After the method of communication had been explained and the wire was clear, perhaps five minutes having elapsed, Lindbergh said casually, "Hello. How's everything? I came across better even than I expected. The reception absolutely splendid, magnificent."

He could not bring himself to disclose before us the feelings which were made evident in the way he turned his head aside over the telephone. Then came an interval and Lindbergh was warned to keep a sharp ear and to try to reply. We who were watching could tell by the slight start he gave, when his mother's voice came clearly, saying, "Splendidly well done."

Lindbergh pulled the telephone receiver closer to his ear to catch these words in which the mother tried to convey her faith and pride and when he hung up the receiver, there came the only time in those hours when he has been awake in Paris that he lost the deprecating air which is so natural to him.

With his hands still resting on the telephone apparatus, as if he had something yet to do, and with his mother's voice still ringing in his ears, he said:

"That's all I needed to make my arrival perfect."

Then, turning to me, he said:
"Tell them in America I appreciate that."

As this conversation was private it was left to Lindbergh to mention it to the hall full of newspaper men who were awaiting him downstairs. He was asked, "What message did you get from your mother?"

Lindbergh answered, "She said everything was all right at home."

FASCISTS AND OPPONENTS CLASH IN PITTSBURGH MEETING

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 23.—One man was injured in a clash between Fascists and anti-Fascists at a theater yesterday. Police reserves restored order. The clash occurred during a celebration sponsored by the Italian Legion of Pittsburgh, of the twelfth anniversary of Italy's entrance into the World War.

After the entire audience had stood during the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," members of an anti-Fascist group seated themselves when the band struck up the Fascist national anthem.

Hoots and jeers followed and police officers assigned to the meeting hustled most of the anti-Fascists from the building. One man was badly cut by a chisel hurled from the theater balcony.

Soon afterwards a crowd of a hundred or more in the street attempted to make their way into the theater, but were scattered when police reserves went into action.

Again—Mobiloil!

Lindbergh uses Gargoyle Mobiloil in thrilling airplane leap across the Atlantic from New York to Paris

ONCE more we thrill to the accomplishment of an American aviator.

In one great leap of 3600 miles, Captain Charles Lindbergh—alone—crossed the Atlantic from New York to Paris in a few hours. This flight followed his record-breaking flight from San Diego to New York.

In this epoch-making flight, Gargoyle Mobiloil "B" was used to lubricate the single Wright Whirlwind engine of the Ryan plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Thus another great adventure is written into the vivid history of American aviation in which Mobiloil has played its part.

When Commander Byrd flew to the North Pole—he used Mobiloil "B".

When the U. S. Army flyers flew around the world in 1924—they used Mobil-oil "B".

When Lieutenant Maughan in 1924 flew across the United States "from dawn-to-dusk"—he used Mobiloil
"B".

When Captain Lindbergh flew from San Diego to New York—he used Mobiloil "B".

And now—when Captain Lindbergh flies from New York to Paris—he uses Mobiloil "B".

Lubrication was a vital factor in this spectacular flight across the open ocean as it was in the previous epoch-making flights.

There could be no mistake. The single Wright engine must function perfectly.
The slightest mishap meant instant danger, perhaps the end of the flight in the waters of the Atlantic.

The entire lubrication problem of the Ryan plane was placed in the hands of the Vacuum Oil Company. Mobiloil "B" was prescribed. After careful preparation the great attempt was made.

Correct Lubrication did its part. The flight is a success. The ocean has been crossed. The longest non-stop flight in history has been made.

The Gargoyle Mobiloil Engineers are constantly and directly associated with aeronautic developments just as they have been associated with automobile developments from the beginning. As lubrication experts, we prescribe the correct oil for the newest development in aircraft engines just as we prescribe the correct oil for the car you drive.

The oil used in this flight was not a special oil. It was the same Gargoyle Mobiloil
"B" which with the other grades of Mobiloil is on sale by good dealers everywhere.

Put scientific lubrication to work in your car.
Mobiloil proves not only the safest oil to use but the most economical lubrication per mile and per year.

LINDBERGH Lands in Paris on Goodrich Silvertowns

SILVERTOWNS across the sea! Landing on the dependable resilience of Silvertown Airplane Tires, Capt. Charles E. Lindbergh in his Ryan monoplane "Spirit of St. Louis" won his fight with death and distance. The stalwart cushioning of Silvertowns absorbed the landing shock of the first airship to fly from New York to Paris without a stop.

Silvertowns started Lindbergh safely on his way past the dangerous, critical seconds of the take-off at New York.

Silvertowns delivered him safe at Paris—safe from the fateful impact as his eagle plane swooped from the sky, and slammed its wheels down on Europe.

The first thirty seconds of the flight—the last thirty seconds of it!

The first 1,000 feet on the ground after Lindbergh cried "Okay" and they jerked the chuck blocks away from the Silvertown-shod wheels! The last 1000 feet as the great monoplane hurtled across the Paris landing field.

These were seconds of held breath and tense nerves. Would the tires stand up as the 5,150 pounds of the loaded plane hammered and battered them along the runway? Would they hold the 46-foot wingspread of the eagle ship true to the course?

Would a tire fail in those seconds of grave stress? A blowout spelled the end of the magnificent venture, perhaps with a still greater adventure for the man in the cockpit!

Less than a minute of time, yet an eternity of suspense, the overseas plane thundered along the gauntlet of disaster.

Silvertowns held! Their sinewy strength, their sturdy cushioning stood the stress and strain that had doomed a thousand flights. Capt. Lindbergh soared away safe and landed safe.

Silvertowns met the test as they met it when this unheralded challenger, Capt. Lindbergh, started on his flight from San Diego to New York and made it in less than twenty-three hours.

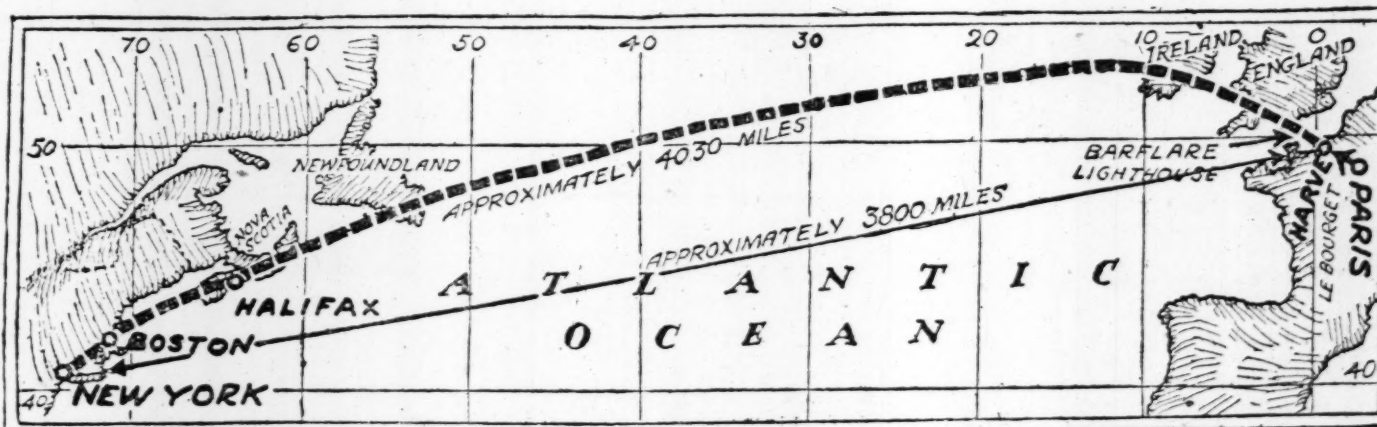

The dash through the clouds to Paris was a matter of gasoline, courage of the intrepid voyager of the skies—and Silvertown tires in the taking off over here and the landing over there.

The "Spirit of St. Louis" sped overseas a perfectly equipped airplane, instruments and parts the nearest to perfection ever assembled.

Captain Charles Lindbergh built it quietly at San Diego, counting on its mechanical perfection as well as his skill and courage to carry through to the goal.

And when it came to tires he fortified the security of his plane with Silvertowns. He underwrote the safety of his venture with the tires that have through years met the test of great moments of competition.

He called to his aid the same flexing strength, the same dependable endurance with which Goodrich Silvertowns have for years served the motor cars of the world.

LAUGHING AROUND THE WORLD

with IRVIN S. COBB

Wild Duck a la Australia.

A patron drifted into a Sydney restaurant, took a seat, scanned the menu and decided that his appetite was not quite up to the printed list of delicacies. He even went so far as to abuse the waiter because he could offer no suggestion that would titillate his appetite.

"Ain't yer got something fancy 'id him the ice box?"

"Speaking in confidence, sir," confided the waiter, "I would a wild duck 'it yer?"

"Lord lumme, man; yer 'Urry 'it up." Things began to brighten. In due course the bird arrived, but instead of being a bird of passage, it was one of the flat-bottomed domesticated brand born of the barnyard.

"What about this?" roared the customer. "Er, you says 'wild duck' to me, and I says 'Right?' What appens, I ask you? This here bird is a tame 'un. Tike it away 'ere I bashes yer."

"Art a mo, sir, 'arf a mo," replied the waiter, lifting a finger in the sign language of mild rebuke. "I'll admit it is a time duck and 'ome-lovin'. But all it needs to make it wild is a bit o' teasin'."

The Diary of a New Father

Sunday Night.

SHOULD think it would have been just as easy to arrange the world so that when you are having a good time doing something you could go on doing it for a while while instead of your wife seeing that you are happy and thinking up something else for you to do, and nobody ever heard of women thinking up anything pleasant either on account of them being the opposite sex, I guess, and doing the opposite of what you want them to do.

This afternoon I was enjoying myself singing while Joan played the piano, and the baby was sitting on the floor trying to take his rattle apart, and he could not do it but he was not getting discouraged any, and everything was nice and cheerful and nobody was being hurt, and all of a sudden Joan stopped playing and I sang three or four more words before I could tell myself who, and it made me sound silly, and I said, "Well, what's the matter? Can't you keep up with me?"

Joan said, "Heavens, I ought to be planning for the bridge club party here Tuesday night," I said, "Maybe my algebra is old-fashioned, but I think you have all day tomorrow and Tuesday to do your planning, come on and play some more." Joan said, "I can't let everything go until the last minute," I said, "Is it going to take from now until Tuesday night to design some undersized sandwiches and things for that crowd?" and Joan said, "The food is only a small part of it. I have a lot of other things to get. We have to buy more cards and the prizes, and I will either have to buy or borrow some more covers for the card tables, and I have to be sure all the napkins are laundered, and besides I would like the food to be a little different for a change."

I said, "Try serving enough of it and you will be giving that crowd a change. I haven't had enough to eat at any of the games since we joined their darn club."

Joan said, "Well, you aren't supposed to eat a full-size meal at an evening bridge party, you know," and I said, "Maybe not, but on the other hand I'm tired of being served just enough to taste my appetite, and then coming home and finding that you haven't anything more in your pantry than the hostess had in hers." Joan said, "I'm not running a 24-hour short order restaurant here, either, if that's any news to you. You kick enough about the grocery bill as it is."

I said, "End of round one. Now while we're resting tell me all the jobs you are going to wish off on me while you supervise our preparation to entertain," and Joan said, "I'll make out a list of a few things for you to get," and that was at 4 o'clock this afternoon and it is 8 o'clock now and she has not finished listing those few things yet, and after I get through doing all her shopping tomorrow maybe I will have an hour left to do my own work, but I doubt it, and I am glad she is just going to enter the four tables of bridge because if the hard work she has to do would most likely kill me.

Home Economics

By Wanda Barton

HOME MAKING has not gone out of fashion but has become the fashion of up-to-date national life. More homes, and better ones, are the message broadcast from colleges and school centers where domestic science is becoming one of the fine arts. In Washington, a branch of the Agricultural Bureau is teaching weaving, how to wash rugs, how to mend and care for bric-a-brac and fine china, cover furniture, how to operate electric devices, and generally improve an old home where new things are not always within the reach of the modest pocketbook.

Women are being taught to take advantage of everything they have, to look at their possessions not with a mind to sell but with an eye to their practicality in making the home more attractive if altered to serve definite purposes. Slipshod furnishings are not tolerated by trained home makers and the better-homes movement is going strong. Many women are using time cards to regulate their own time to the best advantage and check up on that wasted. Allowances for work, recreation, outdoor exercise and social intercourse are all considered. The value of time is appreciated.

One practical woman found herself with four dining-room chairs weak and rather rickety backs. She had the backs sewed off, leaving corner uprights six inches tall above the seat. She had the frame braced so that the chairs were solid, then upholstered and covered. A two-inch band of the material was fastened from post to post a little above the seat and the top of the posts finished with the turned ornamental tops that had adorned the high backs of the chairs originally. The chairs were unusual in appearance and very handy for extras for table, bridge and general usefulness. The expense of remodeling was slight.

Look around your home now and see what you can do to improve it. Take the glass off from the old bureau or chiffonier and make high boys of them and use the glasses where they do more good. Fix up the glasses, refurnish them, turn them up lengthways and hang them with cords and tassels. Maybe it will pay to paint them if they are old and shabby.

MEET THE MISSES

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

More Monkey Folk

A bit of wisdom thus is stated; Seek not to know how you're related.

Peter Rabbit and Danny Meadow Mouse were staring most impolitely at Jocko the Ape, who looked so much like a man, yet who wasn't a man at all. You see, Peter and Danny had never seen any of the Monkey folk before. "What did you say his name is?" inquired Peter after a while.

"Jocko the Ape," replied Circus Mouse. "Really, he is one of the Ape cousins called a Chimpanzee. Some folks call him Jocko the Ape and some call him Jocko the Chim, which is short for Chimpanzee. You see, there are other Apes."

Just then Jocko looked down and saw Peter Rabbit. "Come over here until I pull your ears," said he, and grinned at Peter.

"I don't thank you," replied Peter. "I don't want my ears pulled. If you please, Mr. Jocko, are you related to those two-legged creatures called men?"

Jocko nodded. "There's a cousin of mine right over in the next cage who is about my size," replied he. "He is an Orang-utan, and there is one a great deal bigger than either of us, the largest of all the Apes, and even the two-legged creatures called men are afraid of him."

"Is he here?" asked Peter eagerly.

"No," replied Jocko. "my cousin, the Gorilla, isn't here. But there are plenty of smaller relatives here."

"Have you a tail?" inquired Peter.

"No," replied Jocko. "Members of the Ape branch of the Monkey family do not have tails. Personally, I'm glad of it. I haven't any use for a tail."

"I suppose," said Peter, trying to be very polite, "that when you are home you live on the ground."

"Oh, we Chimpanzees come down from the ground more or less," replied Jocko. "but we spend more of our time in trees. My goodness, that wouldn't I give for a chance to swing along through the treetops from one tree to another! That is the way we travel at home."

"When you walk on the ground, do you walk on two feet?" inquired Peter.

"No," replied Jocko. "we travel on all four. Cousin Gorilla can walk on two feet, but even he uses all four much of the time."

Just then Danny Meadow Mouse squeaked excitedly. He had slipped away and now Peter discovered him a short distance away looking up at another cage and dancin about excitedly. Of course, Peter hurried over there. Such funny fellows as there were in that cage! They were small and in a way they had long tails. Of course, they

Little Miss Malaprop

By Fay Stevenson

More Monkey Folk

A bit of wisdom thus is stated; Seek not to know how you're related.

When Miss Malaprop learned that her most intimate friend was to become a June bride she began to embroider a set of linen towels for her. She did beautiful work, and it was with great pride that she surveyed her latest towel. Surely, none of the bride's presents would be more appreciated than these two dozen bits of handiwork worked with so much devotion and sincerity.

Then she decided to embroider initials on them. One afternoon as she was engaged upon the first towel another friend came to make a call. She praised Miss Malaprop's work profusely, but wrinkled her brow when she spied the initials.

"My dear girl, why 'M. L. R.'?" she asked excitedly.

"Because she is Mary Louise, and she'll soon be Mary Louise Roe!" gaily replied Miss Malaprop.

"But don't you know you must not embroider the towels with her married initials?"

Miss Malaprop flushed, admitting she had never heard this and began to hastily rip out the "R" on her first towel.

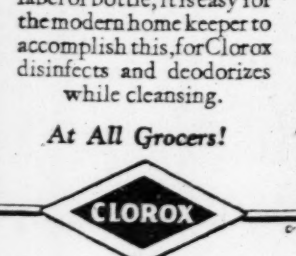

"Wedding presents are all sent to the bride and are her personal property," explained her caller. "Articles are marked with her present maiden name—not her future initials."

Belted jumpers buttoned at one side suggest the Russian blouse.

CLOROX deanses toilet bowls

Good housekeepers insist upon having the toilet bowl clean and white. They know that this is the first and most important step in keeping the bathroom sanitary and free from odor. By using Clorox according to directions on label of bottle, it is easy for the modern home keeper to accomplish this, for Clorox disinfects and deodorizes while cleansing.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

Angelo Patri is just the principal of a New York grade school, but the late Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard, said Patri is doing more for common-school education than any other person in America. This school, a model in every respect, is a mecca for teachers from all parts of the country.

The mother of a noisy brood must needs have peace and quiet or lose her mind. And children are not peaceful, nor quiet. They are active and noisy, turbulent, stormy. They range from grief to glory in each brief day. How then shall a mother have peace?

I watched Belle with her eager, cawing flock. How clamorous they were for her attention, for her sympathetic smile and word. And how crude they were in manner and action. And how sure and steady and gracious she was as she served the mid-day lunch.

"Mom, I got ninety-eight in spelling this morning and Bud got ninety," said Nell, malice in her eye as it gave Bud a tail swipe.

"What if you did?" yelled Bud, on fire at once. "I put it over you in geography. Said Cape Horn was in Africa. Stupid."

While the never failing battle waged between Bud and Nell their mother, gazing at them calmly,

"Of course I baked it"

"I always have light fluffy and delicious cake because I use Stanard's

Royal Patent Cake Flour

It makes such wonderful biscuits, waffles and pastries too. Bakes Like Magic came in until, fed and brushed and smoothed they started once more for school, Belle expressed peace. Not that she was inert and still. She wasn't. She was very much alive. Her hands and her feet and her whole being was busy. But at peace. An inner peace shone in her eyes, steady, her hands and arms were busy, steady, her thought and made it strong.

"I try to remember that they are little bundles of maybes. I try to "Ninety-eight is very good Nell. I'm glad my boy knew where Cape Horn is. I hope you two will help each other get along in school. That one good thing about having you in the same class you can help each other. Bud, give little Peter some more milk. And Nell, Dan needs a hand there with his prunes. That's the way. Help each other out."

CHARACTER

By Lucy Lowell

IF YOU are one of those who constantly turn down all invitations to sociability—

If you are one who always is saying, "It's nice of you to ask me and I'd like it, but"—

If you are one who boasts himself a "stay-at-home" with the air of making a legitimate excuse for a certain spiritual grouching—

If you shrink from the thought of meeting new people, from doing your part toward entertaining a crowd, feel the whole thing is blah—

Don't you think you'd better sit down and take stock of yourself? No human being can live in, by and for himself alone and get away with it. Every personality is made up of particles of other personalities acquired through social contact, refined and adjusted by the nature of the individual to fit into a complete, harmonious mosaic.

The finished product is what we call "character." No character is rounded and developed in solitude. Human contact of whatever sort, however brief or however trivial it may seem, generates thought.

And thought is the beginning and end of progress. You may object that you care little for progress. You are happy as is; you don't feel the urge to go forward.

But this argument is contrary to life, which, for every created thing, is a process of going forward. There is no such thing as standing still; to attempt this would be to regress.

Everything moves; the entire universe moves. It is only dead things—which are in a state of decay and dissolution—that can slip back into native elements.

So get out a little more, you stay-at-home, and brush up the old personality. Accept a few of those invitations and say, "Yes, thanks," with full intention of doing your part when you do get out.

Let people know that you're glad to meet them and make them glad to meet you. You'll be surprised what a difference it makes.

(Copyright, 1927.)

remember that they are as right for them as they can be and if they are to be any righter, it will be because I try to show them the way. I don't always know the way but I do know that if I just remember that they have rights within them, and hold myself at peace so the rightness can shine through, things will be all right.

This West End Family Can Reduce Laundry Expenses!

Now they employ a laundress in addition to a maid because the maid won't do the washing. We would do their entire family washing, and iron the flat work, too, at a weekly cost to them of only $2—the bundle weighing 25 pounds. Only the lighter articles would be returned for ironing at home, and the maid could do this work very easily.

Figure up the cost of a laundress, which is over $3 a day, the time the maid now wastes, the cost of soap, gas, water, electricity, washing equipment, etc., and it can readily be seen that Cascade Wet Wash is much cheaper.

And it is much better and more dependable. The clothes are carefully washed and rinsed in numerous changes of rain-soft water, with the purest soap, and are returned immaculately clean.

VIRGINIA TRACY

SYNOPSIS.

Cornelia Marsh, employed in the scenario department of Hertzog's motion picture studio at Fort Lee, learns with sorrow that Henry Horner, the head of the department, has been fired by Lyman Hertzog, son of the owner of the studio. Every one knows that Lyman is jealous of Henry because he is in love with Dulcie Jayne, the star of the studio, but Dulcie seems to prefer her director, Daniel K. Leland.

INSTALLMENT IX.

MRS. MARSH'S LIFE PRESERVER.

NOTHING else happened. Lyman did not step on the little fan nor grind it under his heel, as they might have finished off the scene in the studio. He did not even kick it out of his way, though Cornelia seemed to feel his foot touching it, it was so near. He did nothing. Except smile.

Thus smiling, standing quite still with his hands in his pockets and looking down at the little installment plan fan that had no mistress, he again started whistling his favorite tune. After a phrase or two he let the whistle break into words, which he sang softly.

Her kisses come too high for you,
She hasn't got a heart to cry for you,
I'll tell your girl good-bye for you, and passed on to his father's office.

Mr. Horner's large, shapely hand picked up the box, picked up the fan. Encircling the fan with loops of turquoise chain, he put it carefully to bed again in the jewelers' cotton and, precisely refitting the cover of the box, once more placed it with the things he was going to take home.

Then he looked up, saw Miss Jacobs standing there waiting for the list of new books, as she had been standing since, let us say, before the war, and smiled at her gayly. O, gayly!

When in distress, give a party
Little Mrs. Marsh had never formulated this creed in words, but she had somewhere been told that actions speak louder. And whenever the world began to throw cold water on this gallant septuagenarian—a small, eager lady, elegant and chirpy, with very white hair and very black eyes—she reached for festivity as for a life preserver.

On the day following that in which Cornelia had brought home the hard word that she was to lose Mr. Horner, there appeared upon the horizon of the Bronx flat that sized cloud which is generally spoken of in connection with a man's hand—one of the two lodgers gave notice.

Hopping about her housework with the perky energy of a canary bird and with the same greed of sunshine, Mrs. Marsh just said to herself that she and Cornelia wouldn't wait till Sunday for their regular weekly movie, they would go tonight.

Perhaps a romantic streak ran in the family. For if Cornelia, at forty-five, ardently desired to look at rivers on her way to work, so Mrs. Marsh, at seventy, just as ardently desired to sparkle. You see, sparkle, festivity, in Lionel Marsh's days, had been round her like a nest. To the wife of Marc-Antony-Romeo they had formed a mood not of nervous tension for special occasions, but of protected peace for a home. Pitched neck and crop into hustling and terror, into the struggle for bread and for breath, when she and her little girl looked back to Eden their wistfulness sought no garden and secluded homestead, but thronged hotels, mirrored, many-windowed suites lit by glittering chandeliers and facing, gala-wise, on the chief squares of cities; they saw themselves in the midst of long, gleaming corridors rich with red velvet carpets; restaurants like state apartments, all begit and bellowed.

In the Marc-Antony-Romeo days whatever happened, from a week's record breaking business to a bad notice, you immediately ordered something for everybody to eat and drink. Wherever you went, you went in a swarm—an attendant swarm. And whenever anything touched you, and whatever it was, money flowed from you as from an enchanted fountain, that being largely, indeed, what you were for. Thus it came about that to Mrs. Marsh the spending of money was water to the gills of a fish, she began to breathe freely as she felt it flow.

And though nowadays her lungs went mostly dry, she was, in a sense, extremely provident; she could to with a sip. Any sort of public gaiety, even a holiday in a park, she could use as a latch-key to her own vanished kingdom; the scantiest and most bargain-counter luxury, like a hot chocolate at some shiny soda fountain on a cold day, she could gather to her like a warm cloak against the winds of fear. Though not so deep as a well nor as wide as a church door, these were enough; they served.

The Bronx flat, rightly seen, was just a station or, as her youth would have said, a depot, where Mrs. Marsh and her daughter were waiting with a certain amount of inconvenience, of worry even, for their train. It was late, but trains often were. And once they got aboard their car—Cornelia's car, now—they would travel smooth again. O, as the widow of Marc-Antony-Romeo and the mother of a promising young authoress with a bright future before her, Mrs. Marsh still thought of herself as a person with ample grounds for sparkling!

For if Mr. Horner had rejected "Briar Rose," that masterpiece of Cornelia's which was to have acted as engine to their train, hadn't he also praised it? Praised it so much that he would probably have accepted it when it was re-written? To keep saying that there would never be another Henry Horner and that it was no use trying to signal the attention of any ordinary scenario-editor with an original got you nowhere! There was something poor spirited in Cornelia's insistence that if you threw your original into the sea, instead of the scenario department, you did at least save postage. Cornelia had once showed her mother a statement in a trade journal that, out of four thousand originals submitted to the motion picture industry during a year, one had been accepted. And this article had cheered Mrs. Marsh immensely, there being to her mind every reason why "Briar Rose" should be that one.

There were other stars in the world beside Dulcie Jayne! Not but that Mrs. Marsh herself would have preferred Dulcie; only, Mrs. Marsh wanted a little money. Suppose Cornelia should say that if she couldn't sell "Briar Rose" to Dulcie she didn't care to sell it to anybody? A daughter with the temperament of a writer is a strange thing! More unpredictable than lodgers themselves! Mrs. Marsh did not sigh. But she promised herself that, since the day was turning very warm, this evening, after the picture, she and Cornelia would take transfers over to the Broadway bus and ride down Riverside to see the lights.

Probably, on the west coast the studio restaurant is all that it is made out to be for picturesque variety of costume and the leveling of rank; in that more lavish and scrambling game, cats may look at kings, and the little mice under their chairs stare close at kings and cats round the same table. But a Hertzog star would as soon have thought of eating off the floor as in the restaurant. Maids with electric stoves served luncheon to the elect in their dressing rooms, a waiter brought Mr. Hertzog cold meat and a glass of milk in his office. Lyman, jumping into his car, generally tore for the nearest roadhouse, and the restaurant was largely left to plectes getting from five hundred a week down. In winter Cornelia would have to forego with those furthest below the salt, but in the fine weather she had a lonely, favorite bower for communion with her mother's sandwiches and thermos bottle.

Turkish Princess Sells Silk.
BUDAPEST, Hungary. — The Turkish Princess Fitte is the star saleswoman of a Paris firm of dressmakers who chose her, the granddaughter of the Sultan Abdul Hamid II, largely because she knows all the idioms of the Balkan countries in which she travels. Tiring of monotonous life in the royal harem, she escaped in 1915 from Constantinople and in Paris showed a marked aptitude for business. She now receives a salary of 100,000 francs a year.

40?—No!

The rule for keeping "That School-girl Complexion" regardless of your age

By NORMA SHEARER

THE rule of Youth is a simple one. A rule anyone can follow, and that scores of thousands do, with surprising results. It starts with gentle skin cleansing, with pores freed regularly of accumulations, say famous beauty authorities. Thus, largely on expert advice, millions use Palmolive Soap; touch their faces with no other. For it is a True Cosmetics Soap. Made of cosmetic oils. Made for one purpose only—to protect and beautify the skin.

Wash the face gently with Palmolive. Massage its balmy olive and palm oil latter into the skin. Rinse with warm water; then with cold. That is all—it's nature's rule for keeping that school-girl complexion. Use this way regularly, and particularly before bed. Note how much better your skin in one week. Use powder and make-up all you wish. But never leave them on over night.

GET REAL PALMOLIVE
Costs but 10c a cake. Use no other on your face. But be sure you get GENUINE Palmolive. Crude imitations, represented to be of olive and palm oils, are not the same as Palmolive. Remember that and TAKE CARE. The Palmolive-Peet Co., Chicago, U. S. A.

(By a member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)
C. H. R.—resident of the city does not need a fishing license, if he fishes only in the city limits. This is the case in Missouri since the 1921 law went into effect.
M. M.—A lawyer should not be paid by both sides in a contested divorce case. If the plaintiff authorized the lawyer to drop the case he could do so with the consent of the court.
A. S.—You would probably be entitled to a part of the proceeds of the sale of the property. You can also obtain adequate support for your children. Consult a lawyer and ask him to take your case on a contingent fee basis.
W. H. G.—The case operated by the Water Department for the convenience of its employees, there is no ordinance which provides that the service be maintained or continued so that they can suspend if they desire.

WEDNESDAY

Health and sanitation questions of public interest.
DESTRUCTION.—The relationship you speak of is so remote that we do not think it should be a barrier to your marriage.
M. R. Q.—Try the following to correct the dry condition of your scalp, as well as to prevent dandruff and falling hair: Wash with a drachm of olive oil and six ounces of alcohol. Rub it in well whenever the tonic is used. Apply the tonic to the scalp every night and morning by rubbing it in well with the fingertips.
WORRIED MOTHER.—It must occur to you that the proper course to pursue is to enlist the services of a physician for the relief and cure of such a case. You express a willingness to consult a competent physician if you know such a one, therefore our advice is to write self-addressed stamped envelopes, repeating your question and we will send you the name and address of a physician to whom the case can be entrusted for the best results.

BALDWIN TELLS HOUSE BRITAIN WILL BREAK WITH RUSSIA

Prepared to Expel Soviet Trade Delegation on Thursday as Result of Discoveries in Recent Raid.

PLANS TO RECALL MISSION IN MOSCOW

Legitimate Use of Arcos Ltd., He Says, Will Permit Ordinary Commerce to Continue.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 24.—Diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Soviet Russia will be broken, subject to approval of the House of Commons on Thursday, Premier Baldwin announced today. The Government's decision is a sequel to the recent raid on Soviet House in London.

Stating that the British Government proposed to terminate the present trade agreement and request the withdrawal of the Russian Trade Delegation and the Soviet mission from London, he declared that the British diplomatic representatives in Moscow would be recalled.

The legitimate use of Arcos Ltd., the Russian commercial organization, would not be affected by the Government's decision, he continued, adding that Great Britain was prepared, while terminating privileges conferred by certain articles of the trade agreement, to make all the arrangements necessary for ordinary trade facilities between the two countries.

The Government's decision, the Premier said, was based on investigations regarding the "propaganda and subversive activities" of the Russian trade delegation which culminated in the recent raid of Soviet House and the seizure of various documents and files.

Clearing House for Propaganda. Among these papers, the Premier said, one snatched from the hands of a man burning certain documents, contained a list of secret addresses, including some in the United States. This paper, he continued, showed means of communicating with the Communist parties in the United States, Mexico, South America, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

The Premier charged that Soviet House had been habitually used as a clearing house for subversive correspondence, including a "handbook" campaign, as well as military espionage and subversive activities throughout the British Empire and North and South America.

Responsibilities for the tactics of the Trade Delegation and for the abuse of the facilities afforded the latter, could not be escaped by the Soviet Government, the Premier declared. It would be difficult to believe, he continued, that while one organ of the Soviet Government was breaking its solemn undertakings, that the other organ of that Government, the Great Britain, namely the Soviet mission and the Soviet Government itself were not parties to these proceedings.

Former Premier Ramsey MacDonald, parliamentary labor leader, arriving on the Berengaria, from an American trip, today said at Southampton that the labor party was prepared to challenge the Government to an election in case of a complete break with Russia.

MacDonald arrived at the House of Commons at 6 p. m., just in time to hear Baldwin's speech. The labor members received him at the entrance of the House, and as they escorted him in, Premier Baldwin says Soviet Activities Forced Raid.

Premier Baldwin was cheered when he entered the House. The Chamber and other galleries were thickly filled, and great difficulty was experienced in accommodating the later arriving distinguished members.

The Premier, answering a question by J. R. Clynes, Laborite, as to whether he could now make a statement regarding the raid on Soviet House and the result of the search, replied, "Yes, sir," to the accompaniment of loud Conservative cheers.

The Premier said that for many months the police, in collaboration with military authorities, had been investigating the activities of a group of secret agents engaged in an attempt to obtain highly confidential documents relating to the armed forces of Great Britain.
